PRICE TWO CENTS

CAMPUS-WIDE ELECTIONS TODAY

Students' Society Assembly Paralyzed By Poor Crowd

Peace Council Issue Fails to Lure More than Half Quorum

By ALLAN BERNFELD

The stage was set. With chairs placed on the floor of the house, with Ralph Shackell arisen from his sick bed to come and give the Student Society the benefit of his experience in many a bout of administrative oratory, and with atmosphere tensed for violent political action, the students gathered to fight out the question of whether or not the McGill Peace Council should exist.

But it didn't get that far. The meeting was called for 4 p.m. At 4:15 p.m. some students started to drift in. At 4:35, with only one hundred and fifty people, or half the necessary quorum present, chairman Boris Gardavsky called the meeting to order with the announcement that S.E.C. Candidates for Arts and Science would be introduced to the assembly, and each would be given five minutes to present his case.

Charles Taylor, Arthur Shimizu, Gerald Charness, and Barbara Chambers each spoke briefly, following the outline of their platforms which were published in The Daily.

After this series of speeches was concluded, and with the needed quorum still lacking, Gardavsky introduced the five candidates for the position of Member-at-Large to the Women's Union executive. Each of these five girls was spoken for by a friend.

The business of the election rally having been satisfactorily concluded, (except for a microphone which had an annoying tendency to gradually descend to the floor when anyone was speaking into it), and with no sign of a quorum, chairman Gardavsky had no choice but to adjourn the "election rally."

What might have been a dynamic student meeting, therefore, turned into a gentle little formal gathering. Where political opinions might have been flung about like stones at glass windows, the gathering was required to sit quietly and behave themselves while the nominees spoke.

The meeting was to have considered first an amendment to the Student Society constitution which, it passed, would have given an

S.E.C. vote to the elected representative on the Student Athletic Council. Minutes of the last General meeting, and new business including an exchange of Union privileges with Durham and Glasgow Universities, would also have been considered.

Last item on the agenda was a motion "respectfully requesting" the S.E.C. to charter the McGill Peace Council. This motion, proposed by Ed Baxter, Divinity I, and seconded by John Wright, B.A. III, would have forced the Student Society in general to pass judgment on an organization which has already been rejected by the S.E.C. on the grounds that its activities would duplicate those of other existing campus political clubs.

When Gardavsky adjourned the meeting at 5:10 p.m., approximately two hundred and fifty people were present.

"We could not have deferred the meeting until Wednesday," he stated, "because the election rally was part of the agenda, and it had to be held on the day before elections. I did not ask the University to cancel lectures because relatively few students have lectures that late in the afternoon."

The lack of a quorum, and the resultant adjournment, prevented any discussion of the Peace Council issue. It also prevented the presentation of a motion by Len Harbour, Div. II, and Eric Mafler, B.A. III, to make the Peace Council into a sub-committee of the L.P.P. Club. This motion would have undoubtedly provoked further intense controversy.

So the student politicians were stifled, and the political action must be shelved for another few months. The students, apparently, cannot be bothered with such trivial things as peace councils, or even their own executive representatives. Ignorant of both student and world politics, they went home to supper.

So did those who had come to the union. But their supper lacked some of the spice they had expected. The taste of vigorous battle was lacking.

A. & S. Professor's Tea Scheduled for Dec. 10

Under the joint chairmanship of Mike Peers and Keith Drummond, the Education Committee of the Arts and Science Undergraduate Society have resumed activities this year.

A Professor's Tea has been planned for Sunday next, December 10, in order to give all students, but particularly freshmen, an opportunity to meet their professor's informally. The tea will take place in the Union Reading Room, from 4 to 6 in the afternoon.

Among the professors attending will be Messrs. Phelps, Launcey, Tate, Hatcher, Pady, Solon, Duthie and Dr. Roscoe. A reception line will form at 4:30.

Coffee, sandwiches, and cake will be served, and all arts and science students are invited.

Alberta Students Approve Course In Journalism

Edmonton, Alta. — (CUP) — A resolution advocating the establishment of a course in Journalism at the University of Alberta, put forward by The Gateway, the university paper, was recently adopted by the Students' Council.

The resolution was placed before the president of the university and came up for discussion at a meeting of the Committee on Student Affairs on Friday, November 17. The outcome of the discussion is not yet known.

One of the main reasons behind the resolution, as advanced by Editor Jim Woods, is that a chronic shortage of trained staff makes it impossible for The Gateway to fulfill its primary duty of providing journalistic training for the students.

Also, members of the staff of the college paper have suffered in their academic standing in the past. It is further felt that "the aggregate of material appearing in The Gateway is of something less than university calibre."

The University of Alberta has recognized these difficulties and has tried to help out by reconciling a fairly low standing with the fact that the student in question held a senior position on The Gateway. Also, they pay the Editor-in-Chief $200 per year and request faculty members to encourage students to contribute to the paper.

Major Wilson, Expert On Indian Forests, To Speak Thursday

By ZOE SOUTHAM

Major C. Claude Wilson, former Chief Conservator of Forests at Madras, will give an illustrated talk on "Forest Life in India" in Moyle Hall at 8 p.m. on Thursday, Dec. 7.

Major Wilson studied Forestry under the auspices of the Indian Government, at Oxford and also took a degree in natural science. From Oxford, he went straight to India and started as a forest ranger, remaining in India for thirty-two years.

From his first position of ranger, Major Wilson was promoted to District Forest Officer and controlled 800 square miles of forests "where there were plenty of tigers." Then he served with the Bengal Lancers during World War I. By 1935, he was made Conservator of Forests and in 1935, he became chief conservator of Forests at Madras. He retired in 1940 and moved to Vancouver Island.

The tickets for Major Wilson's speech are on sale at the Registrar's office, at 50c for students and 75c for adults.

FLOATING RIB MEETING

A meeting of the Floating Rib will take place tonight at 8 p.m. at 3478 McTavish Street.

Anybody interested in writing, advertising or circulation of this magazine, is asked to attend.

TWO OF THE PRINCIPALS in the McGill Choral Society's forthcoming "Sing at Christmas" which is to be held in the Currie Gym at 8 p.m. on Dec. 15. On the left, Gifford Mitchell, the Society's director; on the right, Miss Doris Killam, the accompanist for the Society. Tickets for the concert may be obtained from any members of the Choral Society.

Prom Tickets Still Available; Patrons of Dance Announced

Tickets for the Junior Prom will be on sale tomorrow for the last time, Alf Powis, head of the Junior Prom committee, announced today. Tickets will not be sold on Friday, the day of the Prom. It was emphasized, however, that there are tickets still available for sale on Thursday.

The committee announced today the names of the patrons of the dance, which include the Honorable Chief Justice and Mrs. O. S. Tyndale, Chancellor of McGill University, Dr. and Mrs. F. Cyril

Commerce Tour To Visit C.P.R. Tabulating Room

The Commerce Undergraduate Society is holding its fourth tour of local business establishments this afternoon. The International Business Machines Room of the C.P.R. will be the object of today's tour.

The students are to be shown how the machines are operated and what purpose they serve. The number of students of this tour will be limited to 25. The tour will begin at 2:00 p.m., and students are asked to meet on the Arts Building steps.

After Christmas the CUS plans to conduct tours to Seagram's Distillery, Steinbergs, Tooke Shirts, Bell Telephone Company and a return tour to the Montreal Stock Exchange. The C.P.R. tour will be the last one before the Christmas holidays.

Major Issues Settled By PC Campus Group

At a meeting of the Progressive Conservative Club, held yesterday, several major issues were settled. It was decided by the club that at the next Model Parliament, they would oppose the Liberal bill. In order that the group might take a definite stand on any affairs of a controversial nature which might arise on the campus, a member was appointed to report on these matters.

Reds Take Pyongyang U.S. Troops Trapped

The Red flag flew in Pyongyang yesterday.

Vanguards of a million-man Chinese Red army reached the North Korean capital, pushing ahead to wipe out and estimated 30,000 U.S. force trapped in North West Korea, General Omar Bradley was reported to have said in Washington that the withdrawal had made possible a giant evacuation of Korea by sea if that became necessary.

In Lake Success, a day-long debate today on the Chinese aggression was expected. The U.N. steering committee voted yesterday 12-2 to put the question before the General Assembly.

Also in Lake Success, External Affairs Minister Pearson said every possible effort should be made to negotiate with the Chinese Reds once the Korean front line had been stabilized. "I know the policy I suggest will be called appeasement by some. It is not appeasement. It is an attempt through diplomacy to reach a modus vivendi with the Asian Communist World."

In Washington, Prime Minister Atlee and President Truman met again yesterday for the second time, announced they would discuss the world situation again today. No elaborating statement was released.

In Washington, Charles G. Ross, press secretary to President Truman and veteran newspaperman, died early last night following a heart attack. He was 65.

In Dover, Mass., twenty-one Boston business leaders—including the editor of the Christian Science Monitor, the editor of the Boston Herald, and the president of M.I.T.—proposed that the U.S. get out of Korea and accept Chinese armistice terms. They proposed: both the U.N. and Chinese forces should withdraw from Korea; a U.N. Commission hold a free election for all Korea; a U.N. police force to maintain the agreement; U.N. arbitration of the Formosa question.

Campus Clubs Note!

Dates Committee Again Outlines Procedure for Club Meetings

Although the Dates Committee has circulated information to undergraduate societies and all campus groups, there still seems to be some confusion as to why there is a Dates Committee and its function on the campus.

Primarily, its purpose is to avoid serious conflicts and undesirable or unnecessary overcrowding of activities. Proposed dates of functions are to be submitted to the Committee.

Summer Employment Forms Now Available

Civil Service bulletins, posters and application forms for permanent and Summer Employment are now available at the Placement Service Office, 3574 University Street.

In addition to this representatives of the Civil Service Commission will be in the Council Room of the Arts Building from 2 to 5 p.m. on Dec. 6th to answer questions of any students interested in employment with the Dominion Civil Service.

The Commission, with regard to permanent employment, will be mainly interested in graduates in the pure and applied sciences.

Cherness, Arthur Shimizu, and Chuck Taylor. Two of these will be chosen. The candidates for Commerce representative are Guy Benoit, L. K. Black, and Bob Graham. In the Engineering faculty, those seeking office are: John Adjeian, Cliffe Midwinter, Elliot Parker, and Bill Parsons. Running for Music and Divinity representative are Leonard Harbour and Jack Adam. The Law faculty has nominated Heward Gaffney and Jacques Canlin, one of whom will be their representative on the S.E.C. Mary Foster and Robert Pearl are contesting the position of representative from Physical Education, Physiotherapy, and Nursing.

The four Arts and Science candidates were introduced at an election rally held in the Union ballroom yesterday afternoon. Each contestant was allowed five minutes in which to speak to the students. The candidates for members-at-large of the Women's Union were also introduced and each had some time present to make a three-minute speech on their behalf. Some of the candidates were entertained at dinner at R.V.C. after the meeting.

Students from three faculties have been elected by acclamation to the Students' Executive Council. They are Arthur J. Markus for Medicine, Henri Labelle for Architecture, and George Truscott for Dentistry. Also to sit on the Council is the Vice-president of the Women's Union, Leticia Artola, who was elected by acclamation. The Chairman of the S.E.C., Boris Gardavsky, the President of the McGill Union, Jim Cartier, the President of the Women's Union, Peggy Pierce, and the Editor-in-Chief of The Daily, John Scott retain their positions until the end of the fiscal year in July.

Underground Gossip

Frozen Fingers, Numb Noses Avoidable by Tunnel Trek

By BILL LAWAND

Students of McGill! If the recent mild blizzard that blanketed Montreal, with three inches of snow has left you shivering, if the expectation of the coming Canadian "deep freeze" is covering your skin with goose pimples, restrain yourselves. Under no circumstances should you apply for entrance to the University of Miami, Florida. For this year there is a ray of sunshine in the bleak winter skies—yes, the underground tunnel project is nearing completion.

"Barring any unforeseen events, the main section of the tunnel connecting the Arts Building with the Redpath Museum should be open for use by the students early in January," announced Mr. Defries, Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds for the University.

"Although there still remains much work to be completed on the section of the tunnel leading to the Library, we expect this work to be completed by February," he said.

At present, the finishing touches are being put on the section of the tunnel under the Museum. Here steam pipes are being inserted into the roof of the tunnel, while the floor is being cleaned and paved over.

The early completion of the tunnel depends on two conditions. The first is that the Christmas holidays do not set the construction workers too far off schedule. The second is the weather. Below zero temperatures will not hamper the workers too much as most of the digging has been completed—but a heavy snowfall at this time might very well delay completion of the tunnel considerably.

Several inquisitive students have asked about the purpose of the side-door leading from the tunnel to the lawn in front of the Arts Building. Contrary to rumours, this door is not for the benefit of those students who wish to go sunbathing on the lawn in the spring. The true purpose of this door is to permit additional ventilation and to serve as an emergency exit.

An unexpected discovery was made while excavations were underway in the ground under the Library. It was found that the base of one of the corners of the Library Tower was not resting on rock, as it should have been, but on soil. In order to strengthen the foundation of the tower it was necessary to "underpin" the base. The underpinning process consisted of removing the soil from under the tower, replacing this soil with concrete, and extended the concrete down far enough to reach solid rock, so that the weight of the Library Tower is brought directly on the rock underneath.

Letters to The Editor
The Facts on Moyse Hall

Faculty of Arts and Science.
The Editor,
McGill Daily,
690 Sherbrooke Street West,
Montreal, Que.

Dear Sir:

The Daily of November 30th printed an article by J. Wheatley complaining that the Players' Club had not been allowed to use Moyse Hall for a sufficient number of nights to ensure a good performance. The student body may wish to have the following facts:-

(1) All requests for the use of the Hall by students are now made to me through the students' own Dates Committee. In the past, there have been occasions on which different officers of the same student club have asked me to book different dates for the same activity, and other occasions on which two or more student groups have wanted the Hall at the same time. The Students' Executive Council, therefore, asked me if I would agree to have all student requests for the Hall go through the Dates Committee and so enable them "to plan the year's program . . . so that conflicts and overcrowding in any one period will not occur". I was glad to agree to this arrangement and it has been working well.

(2) The Player's Club was given the use of the Hall on every night for which it asked and for which the Hall was not already booked. The Dates Committee made three requests on behalf of the club and I was able to meet them all save one. The exception was the request for the use of the Hall on November 21st, an evening for which the Hall had already been booked for the McGill String Quartet.

(3) Mr. Wheatley asks for the repeal of the rule by which the building must be cleared by midnight. The Building Staff reported to me that, on the night of the Club's dress rehearsal, they were standing by ready to begin at 7 p.m. but that no attempt was made to begin rehearsal till 10 p.m.

There is one general point which must be understood. Moyse Hall is not a theatre. It is a University auditorium which (on occasion, and under real limitation) can sometimes be used as a theatre. Amateur dramatic groups which are prepared to accept this situation are very welcome to use the Hall and most of them who do so accept it. People who want to regard the Hall as though it were a theatre which they had leased and who complain if other people are not turned out of it to make way for them, must go elsewhere.

Over fifty organizations used the Hall last season and there were no difficulties with any of them except the Player's Club, on whose behalf Professor Horton published a very nasty attack on Moyse Hall; an attack for which no apology was ever made and from which the Club never dissociated itself. This term, over twenty organizations have booked the Hall, and, again, there have been no complaints, except from the Player's Club.

Yours sincerely,
N. H. FIELDHOUSE,
Dean.

Increasing Ardor

Dear Sir:

I read Mr. Allen's column with increasing ardor. I believe it is the only decent portion of your paper. I, however, am not one who deals only in sharp criticism. There is something that stands above all censure, no matter how true or sincere this censure may be. And that something, is of course, example. So if you deem it possible — I do not see why you should fail to do so — if you accept my censure please, sir, accept my writing. I am not adverse to writing for The Daily once or twice a week. Let us bear in mind, however, that this writing be a free and unadulterated thing.

Your Servant,
M. HARRISON MILLER.

No Opinion

Dear Sir:

Concerning the recent number of letters being written expressing the writer's views on television, I express no opinions. Here are the facts:

According to a story in "Variety" (November 28) The "Bible of Showbusiness", the FCC announced that in its eighth year television lost $25,261,000 (1949). For the comparative period January to December, 1949) in radio the profit was $56,262,000. The television loss was in the U.S. only with its much greater population and greater area of telecasting. Go to it Walter Downs.

Brave Artsmen

Dear Sir:

I should like to draw the attention of your readers to a rather unfortunate omission in yesterday's Daily. In the report on intramural basketball, no mention was made of the sound beating administered to a Phys. Ed. team by the Arts and Science "All Stars."

Six members of this strong Arts and Science squad braved the elements and a sudden schedule change, which was again poorly announced in Monday's Daily and which caused several players to miss their weekly game, six men scored 40 points to smother Phys. Ed. 111 40-18. It is too bad that a 20-point game such as that turned in by Bob

Farnsworth and the sharpshooting and playmaking of such stalwarts as Jules Blond, John Lill, Jim McDonald, John Todd and Nino Guallierie should go unmentioned, especially when their achievements were made at the expense of the highly publicized Phys. Eds. and a team which boasts such stars as Gene Robillard and Ken Wagner. It seems unfortunate to me that so much black ink and praise should be given to the Meds and the Phys. Eds., good though they may be, and to such games as that 27-6 squeaker reported yesterday, and not a line on the game described above.

I hope this sad mistake will not be repeated and I might add for your scribe's information that the All-Stars will play, and in all probability beat, the Med sophomores on court 1 at 7:30 p.m. of Monday, Dec. 11.

I remain your staunch supporter and daily reader.

ROY C. AMARON,
Arts and Science Basketball Mgr.

Starry-Eyed Realists

Dear Sir:

The daily developments taking place on the international scene are simply more proof that anarchy or lawlessness must be eradicated if World War III is not to be inevitable. This world we live in is physically one, whether we like it or not. Just as national problems are the affairs of a national government so world problems are the affairs of a World Government developed along the federal principle.

Though regarded by many as starry-eyed idealists, we federalists maintain the contrary to be the truth. World Government is a realistic practical solution to the problem which is at the base of all world troubles that is, the primitive concept of national sovereignty.

The Founding Fathers of American Federation in 1776 had the right idea. Either the 13 colonies got together and federalized under a central government or catastrophe would have overtaken one and all. World War III means according to Albert Einstein the destruction of ninety percent (90%) of civilization. Are you, as a supposedly intelligent college student, willing to take the chance of being one of the remaining ten percent (10%)? The chances are 9:1. But you said you were the realists . . .

Therefore if any students on the campus are interested in the practical solutions to the problems of peace by transformation of the U.N. into a workable World Federal Government, they are invited to attend a meeting of the World Student Federalists to be held next Tuesday noon in the Union. . . The principles of federalism; membership and elections; will be discussed and carried out.

GABRIEL GLAZER, Chairman,
McGill World Student Federalists.

Allen, "The Gad-fly"

Dear Sir:

Mr. Allen is to be congratulated for producing a thought-provoking summary of the college graduates' responsibility to society. Just as Socrates, the "Gad-fly", occasionally stirred the dreary Athenians to action, thus has Mr. Allen stirred me.

It is Mr. Allen's perversion of comparatively innocent recreational diversion, such as nonsensical television shows and motion pictures, into material for his theory of the intellectual nakedness of North America, that is itself material for Communist propaganda. If it is the responsibility of college intellectuals to reconstruct our society by the indoctrination of the masses through the application of "whole systems of ethics and belief" then we must assume that the graduate had acquired some understanding of the "values" and "higher concepts" in his University training. If Mr. Allen believes these values were in evidence at University and were forgotten only after examinations I would gather Mr. Allen is either trying to befuddle the average college student for his own above (?) average amusement, or he is confused about what he is trying to communicate. Are University students ever the "possessors of values worth respecting", or are they merely intellectually acquainted with those values without an attendant spiritual conviction necessary to stimulate the confidence of society? The role of the graduate is evident, but is he being prepared to undertake it?

If many citizens do not recognize the value of University education it is partially because they have not been as fortunate as the gifted few here at McGill. Some have been too busy populating Universities and working to keep them populated, knowing their value only in a negative way; by reading in the slander of intellectual upstarts the uselessness of their own lives and the mundane quality of their amusements. They have been too busy working for the economic and moral future of their families to have the leisure to understand what they have not had time to sample.

Mr. Allen has made several observations showing indisputably his insight, but in pushing his points too far and in generalizing his accusations he has alienated the reader toward some of his views.

VINCENT GIEDRAITUS,
Arts IV.

Christmas Hallowed In Music

Christmas is not Christmas without music to capture the spirit (both religious and festive) of the season. To this end the McGill Choral Society is presenting "Sing At Christmas" in the Sir Arthur Currie Gym on Friday, December 15. The items on the program will be more enjoyable to the audience if they know their significance. Therefore, The Daily is presenting a selection of the items from the first portion of the program. The second portion will appear at a later date.

Prelude: Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring . . . Bach's superb and greatly-loved chorale-prelude, from his Church Cantata No. 147, sets the mood for the Christmas story.

The Prophecy: Good Christian men, rejoice . . . A paraphrase of the famous old carol, In Dulci Jubilo, which was originally a German carol of the 14th century. A contemporary writer says that the angels sang it first to Henry Suso (1366), a mystic, who was so charmed that he danced with his celestial visitors.

Bethlehem: Jesus, Jesus, rest your head . . . The recent interest in original folk-songs and carols has led to the unearthing of much beautiful music in many countries. From the Southern Appalachian Mountains of the United States comes this simple, almost naive melody, arranged by John Jacob Niles, who, with Burl Ives, ranks as one of America's leading researchers.

Manger: Roun' de Glory Manger . . . This example of Negro folk music in its most jubilant, yet tender, moods was one of the most popular selections on last year's Sing At Christmas program. It is repeated this year by request. The arrangement is by Willis James.

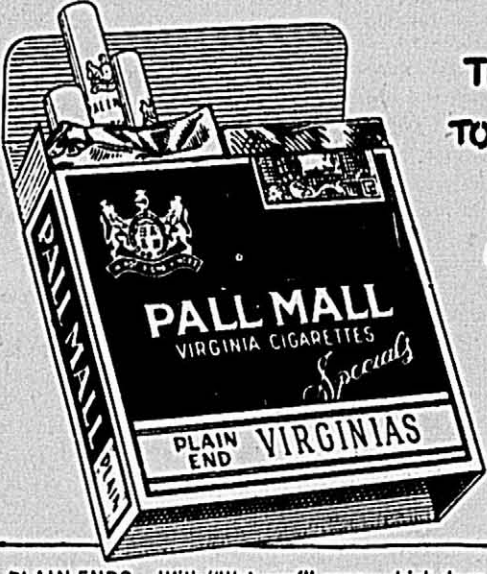

The Gloria: Glory to God in the Highest . . . From the Christmas portion of Handel's Messiah comes

Walking Morning Reverie
by Elohim Raman

It is early morning; the snowflakes fall slowly permitting the light of the street lamps to play little tricks on them, to make them glitter as they drift down to join their brothers that have covered the earth with a white mantle.

The streets are deserted and peaceful; all the furive noises are swallowed up in the night. Morning is not expected yet and the street breathes restfully, slumbering like a tired dog, waiting for the sun to appear that I may resume the endless routine of day work. On the morning, trucks and cars, taxis and buses, wagons and sleighs, animals and humans will pound across the pavement, hurrying, scuttling along, making noise; but now all is silent.

Muffled footsteps sound along the sidewalk. A man; two legs, a coat and a hat, slowly walks along. The silence works on his mind like an anaesthetic; it makes him think of life and death, of comedy and tragedy, of past, present and future. It makes him think.

He walks on.

You think of things that you never noticed before.

You realize things that you never noticed before. You compare and analyze, you realize, and somehow you understand. "You cannot define, but you understand."

And you walk on.

Life and death. Only yesterday you were shaken by the presence of death. The beloved passed away. For a moment, an hour, a day you believed that you would never be able to replace the gap death left in your life.

But you walk on.

It is like driftwood in the river. The small splinters that are carried away by the torrent. They wiggle and shake, twist and turn, shoot forward and slow down. They drift together and drift apart, they might meet again, they might stay together for a long time. When one sinks for a moment it leaves a hollow, but as the flow of water proceeds this is covered up and the piece of sunken wood is forgotten. Other pieces go on, some sink, but sooner or later they all submerge. But when they sink they drift on, unseen. Thousands may sink but there always will be more pieces of bark, or root, or branch, or stems, or leaves, all different and all the same. And the river will always be there.

They all drift on.

And so it is with man. You walk on and on, pass things, overstep them, trip, walk around, run, slow down, but never stop. You walk alone, you walk in a crowd, you walk hand in hand or arm in arm. The ways of destiny are manifold, and the paths of life will never be drawn by man.

And at the end of the trail you are alone again. You cast away your clothes, all remnants of mortal reality, memories.

And you unlock the door of death.

And you walk on.

Pelletier's Progeny
Music . . . Children

The features of the December 2nd Young People's Concerts, conducted by Dr. Pelletier, were the brightness of the pieces selected, David Nadien, and the efficiency with which the program was run.

The first selection was two short and lively movements from Handel's ballet "The Faithful Shepherd". I may say here that I have never heard this orchestra play better. It also became very apparent here how great has been the effect of these concerts on the young audiences.

They expressed a deep appreciation of Handel's music that would normally bore children who had not attended these concerts before "The Clock" by Haydn (Symphony 101), although in a slower tempo and much longer, was at least as entertaining, principally due to the pizzicato passages that brought out the individual instruments which were easily recognized by most of the listeners.

Vollo!

Then The Surprise. This turned out to be Mr. David Nadien, a violinist, but by no means an ordinary one. His history is highlighted by winning the Leventritt Award (the judges were Toscanini, Milstein, and Stern) which gave him the privilege of playing with the New York Philharmonic. He has

French Society Presents
Poetry Recitation Contest With Courteline Sketch

The French Society had an evening of recitations and play's last night in the Ballroom of the Union. M. Fortin de Les Compagnons and formerly of Jean Louis Barreault was the chief guest.

The evening began with a poetry recital contest. The group of students who did not have French as their mother tongue started. Those who were more familiar with French followed. After a pause, the judges, Mr. J. E. L. Launay, Chairman of the French Dept., M. Fortin, and Mr. Rigault, also of the French Dept., named the three winners of each group. Participants included students from the university of Montreal.

Mlle Gauny introduced the play with a note on Courteline, which was the pen name of Georges Moineau, author of the play. He received his baccalaureate in classics with great distinction. After a period of running away from university and the army to his father, Moineau finally settled down to a job at Ministry of Justice, where he worked for fifteen years.

While getting others to do his work at the Ministry for him, he worked on his first literary at-

Elections Dec. 6 Will Decide Seven Council Seats for 1951

Arts & Science — Two to Be Elected

BARBARA CHAMBERS

Platform

The position of Arts and Science Representative to the Student's Executive Council is one of many responsibilities, both to the students and to the SEC. With this in mind, I wish to propose the following:

- (1) The students should be kept fully informed of SEC activities and discussions through a weekly report of them on the Daily;
- (2) The re-establishment of a second-hand textbook service;
- (3) Improved student-faculty relationships through the introduction of student officers to all members of the Senate;
- (4) Definition and delimitation of the powers of the various SEC committees including the Women's Union and the Undergraduate Societies. This includes consideration of their financial rights;
- (5) Cooperation with the A & S executive of which I would be ex-officio member.

Having become familiar with the duties of an SEC representative, I elected to this position I will give careful consideration to all issues which arise, and judge both sides of the question. I would also appreciate receiving any suggestions, opinions or ideas from the students. These I shall make it my duty to present before the Council, and in this way, to represent the wishes of the students to the best of my ability.

Barbara Chambers

Pen Sketch

It is with a great deal of enthusiasm that we recommend Barbara Chambers as Arts and Science Representative to the SEC.

This position requires resourcefulness, sound judgment, and ability to consider all aspects of any question. Executive ability and a logical mind are prime requisites involved in the responsibility of organizing campus committees.

We feel that Barbara has these qualities. Moreover, her great enthusiasm and above-average ability to get along with people make her more than suitable as A & S representative.

She is a Red Wing, and an enthusiastic worker on the Blood Donor Committee and the Choral Society. Prior to entering McGill, Barbara was President of the Westmount Student Council. She has been a member of the MOC, Cosmo Club, and Red and White Revue.

Considering these points, we heartily endorse Barbara Chambers as Arts and Science Representative to the SEC.

GERALD CHARNES

Platform

The Arts and Science representative to the SEC has two main duties: (a) to represent and further the interests of his faculty, and (b) to represent and further the interests of the university as a representative of the highest student body on the campus.

With these ends in mind I submit for your approval the following program.

1. Recently an unfortunate situation occurred, wherein the relations between the university authorities and student government became rather strained. To prevent a possible recurrence I propose the following: (a) The university regulations be published in the McGill Handbook, thus making them easily available to all students; (b) In all cases students be represented on the university disciplinary committee; and (c) the powers of student government be clearly defined.

- (2) Urge the SEC to officially approve the reduced carfare plan and seek the support of the university authorities in this matter.

- (3) Investigation into the reopening of the Book Exchange, an institution that in past years has greatly eased the financial burden of students by making available to them used books at reasonable prices.

- (4) Continued support to the band and investigation into possible new sources of revenue, thus establishing it as an institution on a level with that of other universities.

- (5) Increased Frosh representation in student government.

- (6) Clarification of the status of ISS (International Student Service), NCFUS (National Federation of Canadian University Students) so that the individual McGill student will feel that he has a national voice in such matters as Federal Aid, lower textbook prices, and reduced carfare.

These are the planks upon which I stand. My only promise is that, if elected, I shall do my best to carry them out and to serve the student body.

Gerald Charness

Pen Sketch

Born in Toronto "Jerry" came to Montreal at an early age and received his primary education at the Outremont Public Schools, and his secondary education at Strathcona Academy.

Since his entrance at McGill three years ago he has played an active role in the campus life of the student. Beginning with his freshman year, Jerry represented McGill at the international debating conference at Burlington, Vermont. He was the winner of the McGill Bovey shield for freshman public speaking, losing out only to the Dawson candidate in the finals. He has served on the Arts and Science publicity and cultural committees. He was the first and second year arts and science debating representative. At present he is a senior staff writer on the Daily.

We recommend for your consideration, the candidature of one who is both well acquainted with the situation on the campus today, and who we are sure will, if elected, strive to carry out the necessary changes, which are set forth in the platform below

1. I don't think we can remain satisfied with the present text book situation. While the setting up of the student bookshop was a step forward, two problems must be tackled by the S.E.C. First how to reduce prices. Perhaps we can borrow Varsity's system which is essentially the granting of 10% discounts to students through proper allocation of profits; Second, not only should the book exchange be revived, but should be opened early enough next year so that students may buy hand books after their first lectures.

2. The S.E.C. should use its influence to solve the constant problem of the rush in and out of the Arts Building at lecture intervals. A possible solution would be the use of the centre door as an entrance and the side doors as exits.

3. The incoming S.E.C. will be in office next Fall, i.e., during the football season. Bearing in mind that intercollegiate football interests students primarily, consideration of gate receipts should not prevent the allocation of decent seats for students. The S.E.C. should use its influence in this regard as soon as possible.

4. If this year's S.E.C. takes the initiative in activating the NCFUS campaign for Federal Aid to education, it can accomplish something of lasting value. This could be done if the S.E.C. took a stronger stand in support of the NCFUS proposals to the Massey Commission for 10,000 annual scholarships of $500.00 each.

If elected, I shall work for the above objectives and any other proposals of practical value to students.

Arthur Shimizu

Pen Sketch

Those of us who frequent the McGill Union can easily recall an engaging chap in a cotton coat busily clearing away the dishes. He is Art Shimizu, third year science student, who is working his way through college. He is the type of student of whom we need more in campus affairs.

Born in Vancouver, Art received his primary education from the Sisters of the Franciscan Order. In 1943 he moved to Hamilton, and after graduation from Westdale Collegiate entered Dalhousie University in 1948. When he arrived in Dawson College last year everyone came to know him as a friendly and hard working student. Art may not be the type known as "Big Man on the Campus." But when engaged in extra-curricular activity, such as attending an S.C.M. Work Camp, or organizing a Nisei Club at McGill, Art has always shown sincerity, friendliness and capacity for hard work which we are sure will recommend him to all students.

Candidate Withdraws From Dentistry

Mr. Perry Black, Chief Returning Officer, Students' Executive Council Election.

Dear Perry Black: Due to pressure of students in Dentistry III and other compulsory activities, I feel that I would not be able to devote a fair amount of my time to the Students' Council if elected.

So, I hereby ask that my nomination to represent the Faculty of Dentistry in the forthcoming elections be withdrawn.

Yours very truly,

George Truscott is thus elected by acclamation.

CHUCK TAYLOR

Platform

I do not believe that a platform should be the most important consideration in electing a candidate to the S.E.C. It is easy to make grandiose promises on the basis of little experience, and there are usually forgotten as soon as this issue of the Daily sinks to its final resting place on the floor of the Arts Building. So much of S.E.C. activity consists in everyday administrative and executive work, that one should first look to a candidate's ability in these fields, as shown by his past career in the University, rather than to the ambitious plans, valid or not, that he may be formulating. As for how I stand up to this criticism, it must be left for you to judge.

I have no axes to grind. There are, however, two fields in which I have a particular interest, and for which, if elected, I intend to do my utmost.

1) The field of Inter-University and Inter-National relations. The importance of this aspect of our University life is growing daily. The need is stressed more and more for greater co-ordination among Canadian Universities, and particularly for greater international understanding on the student level. These two aims are forwarded on the McGill Campus by N.F.C.U.S. and I.S.S. respectively. I have already worked for I.S.S. and it has shown what both these organizations can do and are doing. I pledge myself to support them to the full.

2) The problem of student carfare. The question has been aired of late a great deal on the campus. Much has been said against the work of the student carfare commission, of which I am a member, but I still hold the view that University Students, constituting the embryo of our nation's future creative; power, deserve every break possible to enable them to complete their studies. I am ready to do all I can to further this end.

On these two questions, and on any other points that may arise, I shall, if elected, give the best service I can to the Faculty of Arts and Science and to the University.

Chuck Taylor

Pen Sketch

Coming to McGill in 1949-50 from Trinity College School, Chuck entered second year arts in honours history. During the two years since his arrival, he has held many responsible executive positions and carried out their related duties willingly and efficiently.

Here is the evidence that Chuck is capable of representing Arts and Science students to the S.E.C.: Last session he was active in debating and represented McGill in the Inter-University Debating League. He also worked on the Education Committee of Arts and Science.

His varied interests extend to politics and he was elected to the post of Vice-President of the Liberal Club for the present year.

Chuck's realization of the necessity of facing world issues induced him to work on the Executive Committee of the International Students service.

In addition he has been active in the Literature Society and the Writer's Club and is presently working with the Carfare Committee for reduced rates for students.

Because of these wide interests we feel Chuck Taylor is qualified to represent every Arts and Science student to the S.E.C. Coupled with the practical administrative ability that comes from his executive experiences, is a visionary idealism that assures a conscientious representative.

First, I would like to thank all those who nominated me as a candidate to the S.E.C. The position, we all realize, calls for important duties and responsibilities, but I feel that it is with great pleasure that one interested in the benefit of the others, devotes his time and efforts to such a noble cause.

More specifically, a commerce representative would suggest and improve about all possibilities of improving the school standard. Of which we are all proud of, by proper suggestions to authorities or by initiating extra-curricular activities.

In my opinion, the following points would be the ones I would emphasize as beneficial to commerce students:

- (1) — Establishment of a national commerce undergraduate society with the view of discussing the common interest and problems of all members. (If funds are available, have regular meetings for constructive exchange of ideas.)

- (2) — Membership granted to last year undergraduates at the graduate society. The result would be a benefit both to the University, and to the students in that the undergraduate would get to know the organization, make valuable contacts, and thus be much more inclined to join the graduate society after his studies are finished.

- (III) — Informations given to all undergraduates about different fields of activity in Commerce. This would be accomplished by conferences given by leading professionals, and published in a booklet available to all.

Guy Benoit

Pen Sketch

Guy came to McGill in 1948 from Mt. St. Louis College where he was vice-president of his class, and responsible for a few organizations.

At McGill, he is member of the Newman Club, and of the C.O.T.C. where he has been appointed member of the audit board for the year 1951. He is also an active member of the M.O.C.

He is very interested in psychology having been mainly devoted to it prior to his coming to McGill, and actually attending night courses in this field at University of Montreal. He devotes a considerable amount of his spare time to sports like skiing, swimming, and tennis, and also to social activities like folk dances, etc.

We feel that he is capable of representing every commerce student to the S.E.C., and we may assure you that he will fulfill his duties in an efficient manner.

L. K. (Bimbo) BLACK

Platform

Because the Commerce Representative to the S.E.C. automatically becomes Director of the McGill Finance Committee, and as such, has little to do with policies outside of finance, I will limit my objectives to this field. These aims have not been selected at random, but were formulated while working with the present S.E.C. treasurer on this year's budget.

I fully believe the financial system which has been introduced in the last two years, giving more freedom to individual faculties and clubs, yet centralizing the financial supervision, should be continued and strengthened. Through the continuance of this system I believe the surplus from this year's should complete the reserve fund which is required by the S.E.C. in case of financial emergencies. Therefore, next year the student government will be able to utilize its whole income to the furtherance of student activities.

I believe all capital repairs on the Union should be undertaken on a long term policy, thus spreading a major expense over a period of years. Many of these repairs will not be visible to the student's eye, such as modernizing the short-order bar kitchen, but are vitally necessary to keep up with student demand.

With these points in mind I can only add that I will do my best to bring these issues to a successful close, and will deal likewise with any problems of students interest which may arise during my proposed tenure of office.

Bimbo Black

Pen Sketch

We, the undersigned, would like to recommend Bimbo Black as the unquestioned candidate to fill the position of Commerce representative to the Student Executive Council.

Coming to McGill from the Royal Canadian Naval College where he proved himself an athlete and a leader, Bimbo Black soon applied himself to Campus Activities.

Campus Activities: (1) McGill Squash Team, 150. (2) Treasurer, 1st year Commerce. (3) Treasurer, 2nd year Commerce. (4) Scarlet Key, 1949. (5) Student's Award Banquet Committee Executive, 1949. (6) Combined Charities Executive, 1950. (7) Athletics Night Organization.

In these positions, Bimbo Black has again and again proved himself a capable leader and organizer. His ideas, enthusiasm and personality have won him countless friends. We, therefore, propose Bimbo Black as the man most qualified for the job due to experience and ability, and we, wholeheartedly endorse him as Commerce Candidate for the S.E.C.

BOB GRAHAM

Platform

I am most indebted to those who have nominated me for the office of SEC representative for Commerce, and I should like to extend my thanks to them; I only hope I am, even to a small degree worthy of their expectations of me.

If elected I will do everything in my power to raise the prestige of our school in general, to increase your employment of extra-curricular activities and athletics, and to make our undergraduate years at McGill interesting and beneficial.

It may be possible to lower Student Society fees, institute broader post graduate training in Commerce and things of a like nature, but I do not believe that I, or any other candidate, is yet in a position to make any truthful promises on any such subject. I however will wholeheartedly endorse any such plans if they prove warranted, introduce them if necessary, but above all follow the wishes of you the electorate for whom I am merely a spokesman.

I assure you that I will try to do a little more than is expected of me, a little better than it needs to be done.

Bob Graham

Pen Sketch

Our choice for the Commerce Representative to the Students' Executive Council is Bob Graham. We are confident that he is the ideal man for the position.

Bob has served McGill in general and Commerce in particular as a Senior News Editor and Assistant Sports Editor of the Daily; as an executive member of the Red and White Revue of which he is director of Publicity and Program; as President of his class in his sophomore year; as a member of the publications board; as Chairman of the Commerce Undergraduate Society's Funds Allocation Committee and the CUS Dance; by publicly work for the winter Carnival and the Students Athletic Council; as Assistant Editor of the McGill Handbook 1950 and has recently been appointed by the SEC Editor-in-Chief of the McGill Handbook for 1951.

Last year Bob was presented with the Gold Award by the School of Commerce for his outstanding service to the students throughout the year.

Furthermore, we feel that Bob's wide experience in financial matters, gained through his service with the RCAF in the past two summers thoroughly qualifies him to handle the financial matters of the SEC, a task which invariably falls to the Commerce Representative. This experience was gained when Bob served as "Responsible Accountant Officer" and Paymaster, in which capacity he controlled and was personally responsible for a $60,000.00 continuous imprest fund used to maintain and pay Canada's heavy bomber squadron, Search and Rescue Flight, and Maritime Operational Training Unit. At the same time Bob was in complete charge of the financial and accounting operations of seven station institutions doing an annual business of over $80,000.00.

We know Bob Graham as a conscientious and willing worker who will always do his best—a man truly suited to represent McGill Commerce students on the Students Executive Council.

Council Vetoes Endorsing of Candidates

By LOUIS EDDY

Following a motion passed at last Wednesday's Council meeting of November 29, student councillors ruled that no member sitting in the Council may endorse pen sketches of the faculty candidates for the S.E.C.

Discussion on the motion brought out various points that resulted in a close vote. Some members felt that Councillors were especially qualified to recommend to the student body, candidates who could best fill the council seats. Another opinion was that there was a definite danger of the continuance of small "cliques" in student government.

Several councillors felt that the relatively unknown but well-qualified "little man" was not being given an equal chance when he opposed others who had the backing of Council members. An objection to this point was that well-qualified candidates if they have participated in extra curricular activities, to any extent at all, soon show their ability and are recognized.

However, as one member pointed out, since the different councillors are automatically deputy returning officers for their respective faculties, they are thus prevented from endorsing any one candidate. But, as was pointed out again, this would probably only hold true to candidates in the faculties concerned, and members would be able to endorse candidates from outside faculties.

Students from three faculty groups have been elected by acclamation to sit on the Students' Executive Council for 1951. They are Arthur J. Markus, for medicine; Henri Labelle for Architecture, and George Truscott for Dentistry. The withdrawal of candidate F. W. Bliss, formerly contesting the seat for Dentistry, results in the automatic acclamation of Truscott.

Also to sit on the Council will be the vice-president of the Women's Union, Leticia Ariola, who had previously been chosen by acclamation. Under the Constitution of the S.E.C. the Chairman Boris Gardavsky, the President of the McGill Union, Jim Cartier, the President of the Women's Union, Peggy Pierce, and the Editor in Chief of the McGill Daily, John Scott continue to sit on the council until July, end of the fiscal year.

Elections are being held today, December 6, for the various faculty representatives, members at large for the Women's Union and members of the Scarlet Key and Red Wing Society, whilst fifty-eight men students are contesting 23 memberships to the Scarlet Key.

In addition to this she is active and enthusiastic in McGill athletics as well as maintaining a high scholarship in the Women's Union. Mary-Jane will record. JOHN ADJELEIAN

Platform

I would like, first of all, to take this opportunity of thanking all those students who nominated me for this position.

If I am elected as engineering Representative to the S.E.C., I will attempt to be truly representative of the undergraduates at McGill in general, and of the Faculty of Engineering in particular.

My only election promises are to fulfill my responsibilities conscientiously, and with enthusiasm, and to act with impartiality at all times.

However, there are three ideas which I should like to put forward at this time, with every intention of following them up if I am elected to office:

1. To keep the student body, engineers in particular, fully informed of S.E.C. proceedings, and their significance.

2. To assign to the incoming freshman, especially to foreign students, an upper-classman who is willing to assist him as a "counselor" during his freshman year at McGill.

3. To have a University "Humour" Magazine published by the student body of McGill. (The present publication is not supported by the student government).

Finally, I wish to add that, if elected, I shall welcome any suggestions, advice or opinions, from any individual member of our Faculty, and will give them my earnest attention.

After preliminary schooling in Massachusetts, followed by two years' service with the U.S. Army, John arrived at Dawson in 1947, to enter pre-Engineering. At the end of his first year, he gained academic recognition as a University Scholar — an honour which he has held through subsequent sessions. He was awarded the British Association Prize for second highest standing in a class of 300 during his second year. Following the two years at Dawson, he moved into McGill to enter Applied Mechanics

CLIFFE MIDWINTER

Platform

The students of the McGill Faculty of Engineering have always wielded considerable influence on the affairs of the general student body. This has been due in a large part to the comparative size of the faculty and the unity of purpose with which the undergraduates have acted. This does not necessarily mean that all engineers hold the same opinion on every problem that arises. What it does indicate however is that their representatives on the Student Executive Council have presented the opinions of the majority. To do this requires a very considerable part of the representative's time and energy. He must work in close contact with the members and executive of the E.S.U. and present their own views accurately to the S.E.C. It was only after careful consideration of the qualifications required for this position and the demands which will be placed upon me, that I accepted the nomination.

Therefore, if elected, I can assure the undergraduates of the Faculty of Engineering of: (1) regular attendance at S.E.C. meetings, (2) forceful representation on all issues within the jurisdiction of the S.E.C., particularly those which affect the engineering undergraduates directly, (3) my willingness to chair any committee within the S.E.C. which would advance the position of the E.U.S. on the campus.

C. C. Midwinter

Pen Sketch

Cliffe Midwinter came to McGill over two years ago by way of the University of British Columbia which he attended on a Provincial scholarship. His early education was obtained in Vancouver.

Since coming to McGill he has established himself as an active worker and a keen student. In his first year engineering at Dawson College he won the McKay and University scholarships. In addition, during the past year, he has been an active member of the Scarlet Key Society and the Phi Epsilon Alpha (honorary engineering society).

Everything Cliffe undertakes he does well. He is a good student, a hard worker and a good organizer.

We, the undersigned, believe that Cliffe Midwinter is the man for the job and deserves your vote for engineering representative to the S.E.C.

the advanced branch of Civil. He has given Douglas Tutorials in various subjects, and is presently assisting the Department as a demonstrator.

Extra-curricularly, Johnny made his debut at Dawson in the field of Athletics. He was manager of the Intra-Mural Basketball League, and a member of the Athletics Council. Since arriving at McGill proper, he has been elected to the Scarlet Key Society, and to Phi Spilon Alpha — the honorary society for students in Engineering. He was subsequently chosen Secretary of the latter group, and was appointed this fall to serve on the Curriculum Committee of the E. U. S.

Because John has shown ample evidence of possessing the intelligence necessary for sound judgment, and because he has been active to a degree far above the normal, and shown terrific enthusiasm in every phase of his activity; we feel confident that he is capable of contributing a great deal to the development of student activities at McGill, through office on the S.E.C. We therefore ask you to give careful consideration to his qualifications as a candidate for this position.

ELLIOTT PARKER

Platform

TO START OFF, I would like to say that I can only promise you one thing—to do my best. I realize that there is no use in setting down a long list of promises which, for reasons obscure to the general public, can never be fulfilled. I have felt for a long time — as you yourself have no doubt felt — that the students should be able to take more interest in the proceedings of the Student's Executive Council. If you will give me the opportunity, I can assure you that I will do all I can to better the present situation. I fully realize that this position of Engineering Representative for the S.E.C. entails much work and I am prepared to donate my time and energy to justify your support.

Elliott Parker.

Pen Sketch

Elliott Parker was born in Montreal in July, 1929. Shortly afterwards, his family moved to Winnipeg where he received his primary education.

Elliott returned to Montreal in 1942 and entered West Hill High School, graduating with his Senior Matriculation in 1947. Upon graduation, Elliott obtained employment with the National Research Council, at Châl: River, where he spent a year doing engineering work in connection with the atomic energy project.

In the fall of 1948, Elliott registered in the Faculty of Engineering and entered second year Mechanical engineering at Dawson College. The following spring Elliott joined the Reserve University Flight of the R.C.A.F. and was stationed at Toronto and Camp Borden for the summers of 1949 and 1950.

The many friends Elliott made during his stay at Dawson College and among his associates with the R.U.F. is a good indication of his amiable nature and we believe he is the man for the job and deserves your earnest support.

BILL PARSONS

Platform

If elected to the council, my duties as a member will be of a general nature concerning the whole of the Student Society. As an engineer, I will endeavour to cause full recognition of the interests of the Engineering faculty and to see that its point of view is strongly and well represented.

I do not feel it in place to comment on the service of my predecessor and offer promises of great improvement through new organization. However, I am prepared to invest both time and effort in order to assure that my support of the E.U.S. may be effective in the New Year.

Under all circumstances, I will do what is required to the best of my ability and it will be with a feeling of pride that I represent that group which seems normally referred to as the working brains of McGill.

Bill Parsons, Eng. 4M.

Pen Sketch

Bill came to McGill from the power city of Shawinigan Falls where he attended The Technical Institute. On entering McGill he was sentenced to two years at Dawson where he became active in intramural sports. The first year Bill was on the championship intramural basketball team and took active part in tennis and floor hockey. During the following year, he played for the Dawson football team and was elected to the Dawson Key Society in which he contributed to the success of the social life of the campus.

At present Bill is an active member of the Engineering Institute of Canada and of the newly formed Montreal branch of the Society of Automotive Engineers.

We feel that it is because of Bill's sincere interest and understanding of the problems which arise as Engineering Representative that we the undersigned believe him well suited for the position.

Music and Divinity

LEONARD HARBOUR

Platform

A representative to the Students' Executive Council has two main tasks. First, he must represent the body which elects him. In order to do that he must get to know the students in that body. If elected to represent Music & Divinity, I will make sure that I am fully aware of the problems confronting the activities of those students. I will attend every meeting of the Undergraduate Societies Executives, thereby becoming a participant in planning programme.

In the second place, the representative must be an executive. At meetings of the S.E.C. I will use every available method to make the council aware of the important role the Music & Divinity students can play in campus life. Since these faculties are small in membership, there has been a tendency to offer only passive interest in their activity. This must be corrected. Both faculties represent elements in the life of students which are basic. On behalf of Divinity I will endeavour to put into effect any programme which will represent a strong Christian witness to the McGill students. On behalf of Music, I will aid the executive in their efforts to implement the talent of music students in improving the cultural aspect of campus life.

Our two faculties have a major problem in financing their programmes. Due to the comparatively small income, it is necessary to manipulate the budget in order that funds become more numerous. This will probably mean cooperation with the larger undergraduate societies and the Students' Society. In both social and cultural programmes, campus-wide participation will increase the source of revenue.

Since our two faculties are united in the representation to the S.E.C., we should not leave it there. Through social activity, such as parties and dances, we can get to know one another and cement relations.

Religion and music have long been associated. A programme of meetings, at which our students can discuss and produce effective improvements in religious and secular music, will be of great benefit to ministers and musicians.

I do not intend to make any rash promises about programme and activity. One promise I do make, and that is, that I will devote the major part of my time to getting to know the students in both faculties and, by working with them, use my experience and ability to solve their student problems and improve the lot of Music & Divinity students at McGill.

Len Harbour is an experienced and able executive. Since his entry into McGill in 1946, with two scholarships, he has played an important part in student affairs. In 1947-48 he was 2nd Vice-President of the Arts & Science Undergraduate Society and in the following year was elected that Society's President. While in office, he led A. & S. through one of its most profitable and active years.

Len, also, was, for two years, in the Red & White Revue as a vocalist; for four years, including this one, a member of the Choral Society; spent a year in the Scarlet Key Society; and is now Quebec Vice-President for the National Federation of Canadian University Students.

Len is no stranger to either church or musical work, having served as musical director at a number of church youth conventions, and for two summers was music and programme director at the Y.M.C.A. Young peoples' camp.

We know that Len will be a true representative of both Music & Divinity students, and strongly urge you to elect him as your representative to the Students' Executive Council.

The University is a community of people who have come together not only to acquire technical training but also to make a worthy contribution to the University Life, to integrate their knowledge in a philosophy of life, to develop leadership, and to become more mature adults. While at McGill we have certainly made contributions toward the fulfillment of these objectives I feel that a good deal more can still be accomplished. With this in mind I have outlined the following program:

1. I propose that the S.E.C. help sponsor orientation study groups led by senior students and professors. The purpose of these groups will be to help students in general and particularly freshmen to understand what the role of a university student entails, to discuss various problems and questions concerning courses, athletics and student government, and to make considered recommendations to the university authorities with a view to improving the life of the university as a whole.

2. Since at one time or another a fair number of students has personal and emotional problems, I propose that the S.E.C. initiate an investigation of the need for a better organized system of counselling to help students overcome their difficulties.

3. If leadership and responsibility are to be developed I think that more direct participation in student government is required. If I am elected I shall try to meet with my constituents at various times to discuss relevant campus issues, to help solve the specific problems of Music and Divinity Students and in doing so to interpret the wishes of these students more competently to the rest of the campus.

4. I shall try to organize two social activities at which students of Music and Divinity may become better acquainted in a more informal atmosphere.

5. I propose that the faculties of Music and Divinity collaborate in sponsoring at least one cultural activity. This might take the form of a concert or church music. In such an undertaking both groups will I am sure have something worth while to contribute.

It is not until one attempts to analyse his character and career for a portrait such as this, that one realizes the variety of talent and actively possessed by Jack Adam. He is now in his sixth year at McGill, for after taking an honours degree in arts and a qualifying year in history, he entered the Faculty of Divinity where he led his class and became the first winner of the Birks Scholarship.

In this time at McGill his ability and energy in executive positions have been widely recognised, and, in that recognition, have been further developed and moulded by experience: he has for several years been a member of the S.C.M. executive, becoming President in 1949-1950. It is of particular interest in this connection that he was responsible for the organisation of a study group on general university problems, and of a more specific survey on the personal and emotional problems of university students — to both of which he contributed an unusual insight born of attending the National Council where he had met students from all the major universities. In addition he was an active member of the I.S.S., campus committee, publicity director of the S.E.C. and in 1948-1949, president of the Inter-faith council, in which capacity he organized one of its most successful ventures, in a programme of religious music to which various clubs contributed.

With all this, he has also found time to play inter-faith hockey, basketball and tennis with no mean success. Yet such a catalogue of distinctions, while it illustrates his capacities, does less than justice to his personality. He is convinced, and, supremely, acts upon the conviction that all these activities, when informed by perceptive thought, are essential to a true perspective of student life, and he carries this personal philosophy into

In accepting the nomination to run for the S.E.C., representing the Faculty of Law, I should primarily like to thank all those who saw fit to place my name on the ballot, and if elected I shall do my utmost to justify the trust they have placed in me.

If elected my chief effort will be to represent the better interests of the Faculty of Law on the Council, and at the same time, by sincere cooperation, I shall try to see that these interests coincide with a sound policy for the University at large.

Specifically, I shall do everything in my power to see that the program of Art Exhibitions, which has been inaugurated this year, will play a permanent part in our Undergraduate affairs.

Lastly, I shall endeavor to keep in close contact with student opinion in my Faculty, in order that the opinions of law students may receive a fair hearing on the Council.

Heward came to McGill two years ago from Mount Allison University and was quick to show his interest in student affairs. At Mount Allison he was chairman of the Debating Committee, Founder and Chairman of the International Students' Correspondence Club and an Intercollegiate Debater.

At McGill, as vice-president of the Liberal Club, Publicity Chairman of the Debating Society and active Intercollegiate Debater, he has ably shown his convictions his power to carry them through.

These qualities, we feel, will enable Heward to best represent Law students on the Students' Executive Council. His jovial manner and good nature are well backed by his seriousness of purpose and we strongly support Heward as S.E.C. representative.

JACQUES CANTIN

Platform

The following is a brief, but sincere, outline of my platform as a nominee for the post of representative to the S.E.C. for the faculty of law and a statement of what I hope to accomplish if elected.

I have had a full year at McGill in which to familiarize myself with campus activities and to develop a mature approach to student problems and participation in campus life generally.

As a student of law specifically I have made a conscientious effort to make personal contact with every student in the faculty of law. In so doing I have come to know the majority of the law students at McGill and to gain some understanding as to their attitudes and desires as regards the rest of the campus. I have participated to the best of my ability in all matters and disputes arising within the faculty of law and therefore feel fully capable of representing that same faculty on the executive council.

Throughout my stay at McGill I have made an honest attempt to examine and discuss student activities on the campus at large. I have participated in a certain number of debates and attended a sufficient amount of student activities to deem myself worthy of the position for which I have been nominated.

I promise if elected to devote myself fully to the cause of the students in law and to carry on in the tradition of sincerity and good faith which former representatives of this faculty have done. I shall devote every effort for the close cooperation of the law faculty with the other faculties represented on the S.E.C. I intend to make the law faculty an active vital force in campus affairs and in the furtherance of this end I will be constantly aware of the attitude you, the members of the law faculty, express

Jacques has had a lot of experience with colleges and universities: After taking his Arts at Laval and Ottawa Universities, he came to McGill where he is presently studying Law.

We do not know of anyone who is not a friend of Jacques. He is known in the Faculty as a good scholar and a fine fellow and many have benefited by his help in the study of some difficult articles of the Code.

He is a member of the International Relations Club. As such he has participated in Seminars on Western Europe and Germany.

The role of a member of the S.E.C. is (1) to represent his faculty and his fellow-students; (2) to give his opinion on the various issues that the Council is called to study; (3) to work for the best interests of all McGill students as well as those students of his own faculty.

We feel Jacques Cantin is the man for the job because he has all the required qualities to fulfil this role.

I wish to thank those who nominated me to represent the Schools of Physical Education, Graduate Nurses and Physiotherapy on the S.E.C. If elected, I will do my utmost to carry out the duties and responsibilities required of me, keeping in mind the interests of the University as a whole, and of these three Schools in particular.

Due to their limited enrollment and the nature of their studies, these schools are unable to take as active a part in campus activities as would be desired. My aim would be to bind the three schools closer to the S.E.C., that they might have a fuller knowledge of and a greater interest in student activities.

I will endeavour to represent these schools equally and fairly, and to see that their needs are given every consideration.

As a member of the undergraduate Society of the McGill School of Physical Education, it has been my pleasure to accept the honour of running in the forthcoming election to the Students' Executive Council as the representative for the schools of Graduate Nurses, Physiotherapy and Physical Education. The experience required has been acquired through executive work in high school.

The platform adopted, if elected to this position, is one that applies not only to the school of which I am a member but to the school of Graduate Nurses and Physiotherapy as well. In the past, S.E.C. representatives have not been able to give proper satisfaction with regard to the business of all three schools. It is my desire to meet the presidents of the three schools involved every week or every other week, and have these problems presented so that I, in turn, could bring them to the attention of the S.E.C. If elected I will attempt to accomplish this purpose.

The position is one of importance and responsibility. It requires time and energy. I am aware of this and at the same time am ready and willing to carry out the duties involved. It is with this thought that I respectfully ask your vote in the forthcoming election.

Red Cagers Face Doyles Caldwell, Wilson Missing

By JACK RABINOVITCH
Coach Abramowitz' senior McGill cagers will be without the services of both Dave Caldwell and "Smiley" Wilson, tonight when they take on a scrappy Doyle Motor quintet in the first game of a regularly scheduled M.B.L. twin bill at the Currie Gym. The "Y" Blues take on the Windsor team in the second game. The Doyle team is comprised mostly of players from the now defunct Colonial and Grenadier Guard teams. Dudley, Fields, Henderson, and former McGill cager Star Bobby Dufour, are from the Colonials. Bridel and Pickrell are from the Guards while Dennis Skinner, last year with the McGill team, is out with the Doyles too, along with newcomer Jerry Rowntree. According to latest reports from the Doyle camp Freddie Bridel the top scorer in the loop for the past two seasons, and steady Jack Dudley who aggravated an ankle injury last week, will both be watching from the sidelines. This compensates the McGill team for the loss of Wilson and Caldwell. The Redmen won their first MBL game last week trimming Mag Flynn's Georgians 53-34, but were edged out by a fast breaking and hard driving McMaster aggregate 45-44 over the week-end. The starting line up will probably be Merling, Tolchinsky, Tis-senbaum, Endman and either Finlayson or Garbus. The team, as yet, has not shown the form expected of them but it is still early in the season and the boys may play themselves into shape. Coach Abramowitz seems to be working on a two man bucket offensive and the boys as yet have not seemed to gain the mastery of it. Merling and Tissenbaum have shown well so far this season and are presently leading the team in points scored. Susslin, Nickolaids, Feldman, and Cunningham round out the rest of the team and the angle boys in the cage corners are keeping the odds even with a slight possible edge in McGill's favour.

Veterans Form Nucleus Of Toronto Puck Squad

By BOB BORNSTEIN
Toronto Varsity Blues (hockey edition) are virtually an unknown quantity around these parts, but chances are that Coach Wally Halder has assembled another contender in the Queen City. The Blues are always a force to be reckoned with in the hockey wars. Varsity has turned out some fine puck-chasers in the past few years. The best Blue product of them all is Ed (Sonny) Kryzanowski, the rugged, rushing rearguard, who made life so miserable for Red teams in the past. He is now a member of the Boston Bruins of the NHL and is a teammate of Johnny (Gino) Pelton and Jack Gelineau, two former McGill stars who also rose to the top in hockey's big league. Coach Halder himself was quite a player in his day. He sparked Blue squads in the period when McGill and Toronto engaged in some classic struggles. Those were the halcyon McGill days of Gelineau, Peirson, Sinclair, the Hale brothers, Bob Broderick, Gordie Gosselin and other assorted stars. Now Halder's job no longer consists of putting the puck in the net, something he did with monotonous regularity, but of molding aspiring players into a cohesive, smooth-functioning team. And this he has done with marked success ever since taking over the reins from Ace Bailey. Weak Blue hockey machines are as scarce as McGill football championships these days, and no doubt, this year's Toronto sextet will uphold the tradition. Halder has a number of veterans to throw at the Redmen when they journey to Toronto Friday night for a tussle with their arch rivals in (Continued on Page 6.)

McGill Pugilists Impressive In Workouts

Under the watchful eye of their new coach Burt Light, thirteen boxing enthusiasts turned out for conditioning class yesterday afternoon. The new mentor, former coach of the Westmount Y.M.C.A., is endeavouring to prepare some pugilists for the boxing entry on Athletics Night. It has been learned that Queen's University will be sending participants in the 135, 145, 155 and 165 pound classes. Among the potential McGill entrants is Bob McAllister who has shown up well in recent practice bouts. An attempt is also being made to obtain the pugilistic services of footballer "Shorty" Fairhead who was one of Coach Light's best prospects at the Westmount "Y" four years ago. Skeets Dorland, a former matman, who displays a mean left hook will help hold up the 147 pound class. The coach also has a hopeful eye cast upon Bryan Shienman, a Med freshman. Bryan a 126 pounder, hails from California where he was a Golden Glover. Ernie Kovac a fisticuff veteran, Jim Miller, Randy Williams, and John Walling round out the Squad.

Amherst to Compete In Swimming Opener

McGill's mermen meet the first pool. Amherst brings a squad north which rates as an overwhelming favorite over the Red Mermen. At the outset of the season Springfield was rated top choice to cop New England swimming laurels. Amherst pulled off a stunning upset in recent weeks by decisively downing Springfield. The meet's victor will receive the Vic Curran Trophy which has been in competition for three years. The pool's opening comes at a time when coach Norm Ashton is embarking on a rebuilding program. The McGill coach finds himself at present without a freestyler of note. The Red Mermen face a program which reads like a list of (Continued on Page 6.)

On Monday night, the Moyse Boys romped to a 5-0 victory whitewashing the Wallopers and gaining their second win of the season after dropping their first game. The Moyse Boys, who hold the Floorhockey Championship after an undefeated run last year are the team to beat again this year, but may run into trouble when they tangle with the Blitzers next week. Up to date the Blitzers have a 3-0 record and lead the league in points. In last night's play at the gym, the Eggbeaters took the Eng. 2M in stride with an 8-1 score. Tyler (Continued on Page 6.)

Co-ed Lambs Gain Second Triumph

Yesterday afternoon's action in Women's Intramural Basketball League saw the Lambs beat the Strathconas and the Barnjums beat the Leacocks. In the first quarter of the Strathconas-Lambs game the ball remained for the most part on the Lambs side of the floor. The first basket was made by Jane McCarthy for the Lambs. The other points for the Lambs were made on a goal and one free shot. The Strathconas made two points on a goal by Jean-Ann Perry. In the second half Pat Elder, Pat Heenan and Jane Easson scored goals for the Lambs plus a free throw made by James McCarthy. The Strathconas added six more points on two goals by Joyce Hamill and one goal by Jean-Ann Perry. The final score was 12-6 in favor of the Lambs. The first points in the Barnjums-Leacocks game were made only by the Barnjums on a goal by Joyce Tubman and a free throw by Jolly Smart. In the second quarter goals were made by J. Tubman and J. Smart and a free throw for the Barnjums and the Leacocks collected one free throw bringing the score to 8-1 at the half. In the second half the Barnjums scored on goals by Cynthia Roberts, Barb Glancy and Jolly Smart and one free throw by Barb Glancy. The Leacocks collected eight points on two goals by Sheila Smith, and one goal by Barnara Logan and two free throws. The final score was 15-0.

Vote as you like, but vote. That is the slogan on the campus today. The reason for this is that both the SEC and Women's Union elections are taking place today. Two posts are being contested in the Women's Union by five girls. Ann Skalth, Mary Jane Ferrier, and "Jackie" Beaudoin are running for second or third year Member-at-Large, while Harriet (Sis) Bunting and Chloe Lafond are contesting the post of first year Member-at-Large. These girls were introduced at the election rally yesterday, but Chloe Lafond was unable to be there . . . she was out in N.D.G. waiting on Montreal's public transportation system. Remember, vote as you like, but vote . . .

While speaking to Miss R. Pelletier at the Placement Service the other day, she told me about some positions the YWCA are offering for girls in final year Phys. Ed. or Social Work.

"Miss Phyllis Haslam of the Personnel Department of the National Council of the YWCA of Canada will be available for interviews at the Placement Service Office on Thursday (tomorrow) between 9 and 12 noon," she said. All interested girls in final years of Phys. Ed. Social Work, or other faculties should sign up on the list in the Placement Service's office on University street.

An M.Sc. student, Dorothy Turnbull, has been chosen to represent McGill on the Mademoiselle College Board. Every year girls from all over Canada and the United States compete, and seven hundred are chosen from all over the continent. Last year Chairman Finch and Joan Beecher represented McGill. Dorothy Turnbull now enters the competition to choose twenty guest-editors who will produce the magazine next June.

"I only entered this as a lark," said brunette Dorothy when we met her today. "I had no idea I would win." In her entry Dorothy dealt with the scientific side of fashion. ("People often forget that scientists can also be women.") Dorothy graduated from McGill in 1948, and returned this year to take her Master's degree in Biochemistry.

A Professor's Dinner will be held tomorrow night at R.V.C. This is not to be confused with the regular buffet suppers that are held, as it is just that special guests have been invited to have dinner at R.V.C. and meet the girls later at coffee. Principal and Mrs. James, and the heads of some of the departments have been invited to attend.

L.P.P. Book Fair

Features Recordings, Marxist Literature

Marxist classical literature, other books on Canadian and world economics, painting by many contemporary Montreal artists, and folk and labour song records were featured at the Book Fair sponsored by the L.P.P. Club, which was held in the Union vclubroom yesterday afternoon between 12:30 and 4 p.m. Florence Boyaner, the folk singer who was invited to sing and to lead discussions on folk music, was absent because of illness, but folk song records and anthologies were displayed.

The book display included such authors as Marx, Lenin, Maxim Gorky, Howard Fast, and Joseph Stalin. A text by I. V. Michurin, founder of the Lysenko school of biology, was also shown.

The records included union songs and recordings of many of the songs of the International Brigade which fought in the Spanish Civil War. Recording artists were Paul Robeson, Pete Seeger, Burl Ives, and others.

since played with the St. Louis and Mozart Symphony Orchestra and at the Town Hall on three occasions. On Saturday, he was by far the most relaxed person on the stage, playing as though it didn't matter (although it apparently did since his performance was superb). As enjoyable as Nadlen's playing was for me, it was at least as much enjoyed by the audience of over 1,000 for they applauded longer and louder than at any other time during this season's concerts.

The final selection played was "The Merry Makers" overture by Eric Coates. This was brief, well-played, and was probably the liveliest piece on the entire program.

On the whole, this concert was many times superior to the previous ones this season.

If the standard of this concert can be maintained, the December 16th program will also be enjoyable.

his opponent of last year, Paul Gelthner in the 200-yard breaststroke.

Elsewhere Amherst is deep and McGill is thin. They have an abundance of excellent sprint stars in Keydey, Tate, and their soph sensation from France, Cabour. The squad boasts a superlative diver in Wells. Their backstroke Wase gave the McGill backstroke duo a close race last year in New England. The breaststroke Gelthner who was close on Koplin's trail last year may avenge himself on Saturday night.

Ashton who is angling for the the CIAU meet this year at London, is prepping some new swimmers. Seeing action for the first time in dual meet competition at McGill will be diver Yvon Delisle and freestylers John Garneau and Charlie Falconer.

Good performances by Peter Small, Graham Rainbow and Pete Isenman could radically alter the somewhat pessimistic outlook for the team this year.

But Amherst seems on their way to the third capture of the Vic Curran Trophy in four years.

the CIAU opener. Phil Arrowsmith and Bill Walters are a couple of good forwards on the roster, and Wally Campbell, who has been made into a defenceman after a whirl on the forward line, is being tutored by Joe (Sugar) Kane, an ex-footballer with the Blues, and should be quite a factor on the blue-line.

The veteran Doug Orr is back again for the goal-tending chores, and he should be a steady influence for the newcomers on the squad. Paul Prendergast and Jerry Fitzhenry are two rookies striving for defence berths, and Wardrop, Ball, Yeo, Dies, and Henderson are the new forwards. Halder is fortunate in having two of his lines composed completely of members of last year's team.

Students' Society Assembly Paralyzed By Poor Crowd

Peace Council Issue Fails to Lure More than Half Quorum

By ALLAN BERNFELD

The stage was set. With chairs placed on the floor of the house, with Ralph Shackell arisen from his sick bed to come and give the Student Society the benefit of his experience in many a bout of administrative oratory, and with atmosphere tensed for violent political action, the students gathered to fight out the question of whether or not the McGill Peace Council should exist.

But it didn't get that far. The meeting was called for 4 p.m. At 4.15 p.m. some students started to drift in. At 4.35, with only one hundred and fifty people, or half the necessary quorum present, chairman Boris Gardavsky called the meeting to order with the announcement that S.E.C. Candidates for Arts and Science would be introduced to the assembly, and each would be given five minutes to present his case.

Charles Taylor, Arthur Shimizu, Gerald Charness, and Barbara Chambers each spoke briefly, following the outline of their platforms which were published in The Daily.

After this series of speeches was concluded, and with the needed quorum still lacking, Gardavsky introduced the five candidates for the position of Member-at-large to the Women's Union executive. Each of these five girls was spoken for by a friend.

The business of the election rally having been satisfactorily concluded, (except for a microphone which had an annoying tendency to gradually descend to the floor when anyone was speaking into it), and with no sign of a quorum, chairman Gardavsky had no choice but to adjourn the "election rally."

What might have been a dynamic student meeting, therefore, turned into a gentle little formal gathering. Where political opinions might have been flung about like stones at glass windows, the gathering was required to sit quietly and behave themselves while the nominees spoke.

The meeting was to have considered first an amendment to the Student Society constitution which, it passed, would have given an

Underground Gossip

Frozen Fingers, Numb Noses Avoidable by Tunnel Trek

By BILL LAWAND

Students of McGill! If the recent mild blizzard that blanketed Montreal, with three inches of snow has left you shivering, if the expectation of the coming Canadian "deep freeze" is covering your skin with goose pimples, restrain yourselves. Under no circumstances should you apply for entrance to the University of Miami, Florida. For this year there is a ray of sunshine in the bleak winter skies—yes, the underground tunnel project is nearing completion.

"Barring any unforeseen events, the main section of the tunnel connecting the Arts Building with the Redpath Museum should be open for use by the students early in January," announced Mr. Defries, Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds for the University.

"Although there still remains much work to be completed on the section of the tunnel leading to the Library, we expect this work to be completed by February," he said.

At present, the finishing touches are being put on the section of the tunnel under the Museum. Here steam pipes are being inserted into the roof of the tunnel, while the floor is being cleaned and paved over.

The early completion of the tunnel depends on two conditions. The first is that the Christmas holidays do not set the construction workers too far off schedule. The second is the weather. Below zero temperatures will not hamper the workers too much as most of the digging has been completed—but a heavy snowfall at this time might very well delay completion of the tunnel considerably.

Several inquisitive students have asked about the purpose of the side-door leading from the tunnel to the lawn in front of the Arts Building. Contrary to rumours, this door is not for the benefit of those students who wish to go sunbathing on the lawn in the spring. The true purpose of this door is to permit additional ventilation and to serve as an emergency exit.

An unexpected discovery was made while excavations were underway in the ground under the Library. It was found that the base of one of the corners of the Library Tower was not resting on rock, as it should have been, but on soil. In order to strengthen the foundation of the tower it was necessary to "underpin" the base. The underpinning process consisted of removing the soil from under the tower, replacing this soil with concrete, and extended the concrete down far enough to reach solid rock, so that the weight of the Library Tower is brought directly on the rock underneath.

Modern Novelists' MacLennan Topic

"Some Modern Novelists" will be the topic of Hugh MacLennan, well-known Canadian novelist, the next lecturer of the St. James Literary Society Inc. The meeting will take place at the Engineering Institute, 2050 Mansfield St. on Wednesday December 6, at 8.15 p.m.

A. & S. Professor's Tea Scheduled for Dec. 10

Under the joint chairmanship of Mike Peers and Keith Drummond, the Education Committee of the Arts and Science Undergraduate Society have resumed activities this year.

A Professor's Tea has been planned for Sunday next, December 10, in order to give all students, but particularly freshmen, an opportunity to meet their professor's informally. The tea will take place in the Union Reading Room, from 4 to 6 in the afternoon.

Among the professors attending will be Messrs. Phelps, Launcey, Tate, Hatcher, Pady, Solon, Duthie and Dr. Roscoe. A reception line will form at 4.30.

Coffee, sandwiches, and cake will be served, and all arts and science students are invited.

Alberta Students Approve Course In Journalism

Edmonton, Alta. — (CUP) — A resolution advocating the establishment of a course in journalism at the University of Alberta, put forward by The Gateway, the university paper, was recently adopted by the Students' Council.

The resolution was placed before the president of the university and came up for discussion at a meeting of the Committee on Student Affairs on Friday, November 17. The outcome of the discussion is not yet known.

One of the main reasons behind the resolution, as advanced by Editor Jim Woods, is that a chronic shortage of trained staff makes it impossible for The Gateway to fulfill its primary duty of providing journalistic training for the students.

Also, members of the staff of the college paper have suffered in their academic standing in the past. It is further felt that "the aggregate of material appearing in The Gateway is of something less than university calibre."

The University of Alberta has recognized these difficulties and has tried to help out by reconciling a fairly low standing with the fact that the student in question held a senior position on The Gateway. Also, they pay the Editor-in-Chief $200 per year and request faculty members to encourage students to contribute to the paper.

Major Wilson, Expert On Indian Forests, To Speak Thursday

By ZOE SOUTHAM

Major C. Claude Wilson, former Chief Conservator of Forests at Madras, will give an illustrated talk on "Forest Life in India" in Moyle Hall at 8 p.m. on Thursday, Dec. 7.

Major Wilson studied Forestry under the auspices of the Indian Government, at Oxford and also took a degree in natural science. From Oxford, he went straight to India and started as a forest ranger, remaining in India for thirty-two years.

From his first position of ranger, Major Wilson was promoted to District Forest Officer and controlled 800 square miles of forests "where there were plenty of tigers." Then he served with the Bengal Lancers during World War I. By 1935, he was made Conservator of Forests and in 1935, he became chief conservator of Forests at Madras. He retired in 1940 and moved to Vancouver Island.

The tickets for Major Wilson's speech are on sale at the Registrar's office, at 50c for students and 75c for adults.

FLOATING RIB MEETING

A meeting of the Floating Rib will take place tonight at 8 p.m. at 3478 McTavish Street.

Anybody interested in writing, advertising or circulation of this magazine, is asked to attend.

Tickets for the concert may be obtained from any members of the Choral Society.

Prom Tickets Still Available; Patrons of Dance Announced

Tickets for the Junior Prom will be on sale tomorrow for the last time, Alf Powis, head of the Junior Prom committee, announced today. Tickets will not be sold on Friday, the day of the Prom. It was emphasized, however, that there are tickets still available for sale on Thursday.

The committee announced today the names of the patrons of the dance, which include the Honorable Chief Justice and Mrs. O. S. Tyndale, Chancellor of McGill University, Dr. and Mrs. F. Cyril

Commerce Tour To Visit C.P.R. Tabulating Room

The Commerce Undergraduate Society is holding its fourth tour of local business establishments this afternoon. The International Business Machines Room of the C.P.R. will be the object of today's tour.

The students are to be shown how the machines are operated and what purpose they serve. The number of students of this tour will be limited to 25. The tour will begin at 2:00 p.m., and students are asked to meet on the Arts Building steps.

After Christmas the CUS plans to conduct tours to Seagram's Distillery, Steinbergs, Tooke Shirts, Bell Telephone Company and a return tour to the Montreal Stock Exchange. The C.P.R. tour will be the last one before the Christmas holidays.

Major Issues Settled By PC Campus Group

At a meeting of the Progressive Conservative Club, held yesterday, several major issues were settled. It was decided by the club that at the next Model Parliament, they would oppose the Liberal bill. In order that the group might take a definite stand on any affairs of a controversial nature which might arise on the campus, a member was appointed to report on these matters.

Reds Take Pyongyang U.S. Troops Trapped

The Red flag flew in Pyongyang yesterday.

Vanguards of a million-man Chinese Red army reached the North Korean capital, pushing ahead to wipe out and estimated 30,000 U.S. force trapped in North West Korea. General Omar Bradley was reported to have said in Washington that the withdrawal had made possible a giant evacuation of Korea by sea if that became necessary.

In Lake Success, a day-long debate today on the Chinese aggression was expected. The U.N. steering committee voted yesterday 12-2 to put the question before the General Assembly.

Also in Lake Success, External Affairs Minister Pearson said every possible effort should be made to negotiate with the Chinese Reds once the Korean front line had been stabilized. "I know the policy I suggest will be called appeasement by some... It is not appeasement. It is an attempt through

Owen and Murray, now appearing at the Penthouse here in Montreal, will be a feature part of the entertainment at the Prom. Stars of the Chesterfield TV show for over a year, this comedy team appeared several times with Arthur Godfrey on his radio and television shows. They also appeared at Ruby Foo's where they performed regularly for some time.

Patrons at the dance will include the president or vice-president of the student executive of the University of Montreal, Laval College and Sir George Williams College, the president of each of the undergraduate societies at McGill, and members of the Student Executive Council.

As previously announced, tickets for the Junior Prom may be obtained between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. in the Union and between 12 a.m. and 2 p.m. in the Arts Building and Engineering Building. Table reservations should be made at one of these booths.

Brief Talks Highlight Astronomical Society

A symposium of three brief talks will highlight the next meeting of the Montreal Centre of the Royal Astronomical Society. Mr. H. F. Hall will discuss "Asteroids—Pygmies of the Skies"; Mr. F. DeKinder will speak on "An Amateur Looks at the Sun"; and Mr. F. P. Morgan will outline "New Theories of the Origin of the Solar System". Members and friends are cordially invited to attend this meeting which will be held at the Macdonald Physics Building on Thursday, December 7, at 8:15 p.m.

The attention of members is called to the fact that the December 9 issue of the Standard will carry a two-page photostory entitled "Star Gazers," dealing with the activities of the Montreal Centre of the R.A.S.C.

Dates Committee Again Outlines Procedure for Club Meetings

Although the Dates Committee has circulated information to undergraduate societies and all campus groups, there still seems to be some confusion as to why there is a Dates Committee and its function on the campus.

Primarily, its purpose is to avoid serious conflicts and undesirable or unnecessary overcrowding of activities. Proposed dates of functions are to be submitted to the Committee.

Summer Employment Forms Now Available

Civil Service bulletins, posters and application forms for permanent and Summer Employment are now available at the Placement Service Office, 3574 University Street.

In addition to this representatives of the Civil Service Commission will be in the Council Room of the Arts Building from 2 to 5 p.m. on Dec. 6th to answer questions of any students interested in employment with the Dominion Civil Service.

The Commission, with regard to permanent employment, will be mainly interested in graduates in the pure and applied sciences.

Cherness, Arthur Shimizu, and Chuck Taylor. Two of these will be chosen. The candidates for Commerce representative are Guy Benoit, L. K. Black, and Bob Graham. In the Engineering faculty, those seeking office are: John Adjeffian, Cliff Midwinter, Elliot Parker, and Bill Parsons. Running for Music and Divinity representative are Leonard Harbour and Jack Adam. The Law faculty has nominated Heward Gaffney and Jacques Cantlin, one of whom will be their representative on the S.E.C. Mary Foster and Robert Pearl are contesting the position of representative from Physical Education, Physiotherapy, and Nursing.

The four Arts and Science candidates were introduced at an election rally held in the Union ballroom yesterday afternoon. Each contestant was allowed five minutes in which to speak to the students. The candidates for members-at-large of the Women's Union were also introduced and each had some-one present to make a three-minute speech on their behalf. Some of the candidates were entertained at dinner at R.V.C. after the meeting.

Students from three faculties have been elected by acclamation to the Students' Executive Council. They are Arthur J. Markus for Medicine, Henri Labelle for Architecture, and George Truscott for Dentistry. Also to sit on the Council is the Vice-president of the Women's Union, Leticia Artola, who was elected by acclamation. The Chairman of the S.E.C., Boris Gardavsky, the President of the McGill Union, Jim Cartier, the President of the Women's Union, Peggy Pierce, and the Editor-in-Chief of The Daily, John Scott retain their positions until the end of the fiscal year in July.

Dates Committee Again Outlines Procedure for Club Meetings

proval will be given only after the Social Committee of the Student's Council has approved the function. An application form as well as the Date Book is to be signed. These forms are available at the Union Tuck Shop or the SEC office. Decision as to whether the requested space can be granted will be made by the Vice-President of the Union, in the Dates Book. Contracts for orchestras, caterers, speakers, entertainers, or for University facilities such as the gym, Moyle Hall or the McGill Union should not be obtained until this authorization is received. The responsible group must also make arrangements at the Union Tuckshop regarding setting of chairs and unlocking of the door. If the grill is to be used, a Union attendant is necessary.

Rental is charged for certain facilities in the Union on the evening. This is to pay employees for overtime, lighting, cleaning and heating. Further and more detailed information may be obtained from the McGill Handbook, and for special arrangements, from a member of the Dates Committee.

Letters to The Editor

The Facts on Moyse Hall

Faculty of Arts and Science.
The Editor,
McGill Daily,
690 Sherbrooke Street West,
Montreal, Que.

Dear Sir:

The Daily of November 30th printed an article by J. Wheatley complaining that the Players' Club had not been allowed to use Moyse Hall for a sufficient number of nights to ensure a good performance. The student body may wish to have the following facts:-

(1) All requests for the use of the Hall by students are now made to me through the students' own Dates Committee. In the past, there have been occasions on which different officers of the same student club have asked me to book different dates for the same activity, and other occasions on which two or more student groups have wanted the Hall at the same time. The Students' Executive Council, therefore, asked me if I would agree to have all student requests for the Hall go through the Dates Committee and so enable them "to plan the year's program... so that conflicts and overcrowding in any one period will not occur". I was glad to agree to this arrangement and it has been working well.

(2) The Player's Club was given the use of the Hall on every night for which it asked and for which the Hall was not already booked. The Dates Committee made three requests on behalf of the club and I was able to meet them all save one. The exception was the request for the use of the Hall on November 21st, an evening for which the Hall had already been booked for the McGill String Quartet.

(3) Mr. Wheatley asks for the repeal of the rule by which the building must be cleared by midnight. The Building Staff reported to me that, on the night of the Club's dress rehearsal, they were standing by ready to begin at 7 p.m. but that no attempt was made to begin rehearsal till 10 p.m.

There is one general point which must be understood. Moyse Hall is not a theatre. It is a University auditorium which (on occasion, and under real limitation) can sometimes be used as a theatre. Amateur dramatic groups (which are prepared to accept this situation are very welcome to use the Hall and most of them who do so accept it. People who want to regard the Hall as though it were a theatre which they had leased and who complain if other people are not turned out of it to make way for them, must go elsewhere.

Over fifty organizations used the Hall last season and there were no difficulties with any of them except the Player's Club, on whose behalf Horton published a very nasty attack on Professor Hall; an attack for which no apology was ever made and from which the Club never dissociated itself. This term, over twenty organizations have booked the Hall, and, again, there have been no complaints, except from the Player's Club.

Yours sincerely,
N. H. FIELDHOUSE,
Dean.

Increasing Ardor

Dear Sir:

I read Mr. Allen's column with increasing ardor. I believe it is the only decent portion of your paper. I, however, am not one who deals only in sharp criticism. There is something that stands above all censure, no matter how true or sincere this censure may be. And that something, is of course, example. So if you deem it possible - I do not see why you should fail to do so - if you accept my censure please, sir, accept my writing. I am not adverse to writing for The Daily once or twice a week. Let us bear in mind, however, that this writing be a free and unadulterated thing.

Your Servant,
M. HARRISON MILLER.

No Opinion

Dear Sir:

Concerning the recent number of letters being written expressing the writer's views on television, I express no opinions. Here are the facts:

According to a story in "Variety" (November 28) The "Bible of Showbusiness", the FCC announced that in its eighth year television lost $25,261,000 (1949). For the comparative period January to December, 1949) in radio the profit was $56,262,000. The television loss was in the U.S. only with its much greater population and greater area of telecasting. Go to it Walter Downs.

Brave Artsmen

Dear Sir:

I should like to draw the attention of your readers to a rather unfortunate omission in yesterday's Daily. In the report on intramural basketball, no mention was made of the sound beating administered to a Phys. Ed. team by the Arts and Science "All Stars."

Six members of this strong Arts and Science squad braved the elements and a sudden schedule change, which was again poorly announced in Monday's Daily and which caused several players to miss their weekly game, six men scored 40 points to smother Phys. Ed. III 40-18. It is too bad that a 20-point game such as that turned in by Bob

Farnsworth and the sharpshooting and playmaking of such stalwarts as Jules Blond, John Lill, Jim McDonald, John Todd and Nino Guallierie should go unmentioned, especially when their achievements were made at the expense of the highly publicized Phys. Eds. and a team which boasts such stars as Gene Robillard and Ken Wagner. It seems unfortunate to me that so much black ink and praise should be given to the Meds and the Phys. Eds., good though they may be, and to such games as that 27-8 squaker reported yesterday, and not a line on the game described above.

I hope this sad mistake will not be repeated and I might add for your scribe's information that the All-Stars will play, and in all probability beat, the Med sophomores on court 1 at 7:30 p.m. of Monday, Dec. 11.

I remain your staunch supporter and daily reader.

ROY C. AMARON,
Arts and Science Basketball Mgr.

Starry-Eyed Realists

Dear Sir:

The daily developments taking place on the international scene are simply more proof that anarchy or lawlessness must be eradicated if World War III is not to be inevitable. This world we live in is physically one, whether we like it or not. Just as national problems are the affairs of a national government so world problems are the affairs of a World Government developed along the federal principle.

Though regarded by many as starry-eyed idealists, we federalists maintain the contrary to be the truth. World Government is a realistic practical solution to the problem which is at the base of all world troubles that is, the primitive concept of national sovereignty.

The Founding Fathers of American Federation in 1776 had the right idea. Either the 13 colonies got together and federalized under a central government or catastrophe would have overtaken one and all. World War III means according to Albert Einstein the destruction of ninety percent (90%) of civilization. Are you, as a supposedly intelligent college student, willing to take the chance of being one of the remaining ten percent (10%)? The chances are 9:1. But you said you were the realists....

Therefore if any students on the campus are interested in the practical solutions to the problems of peace by transformation of the U.N. into a workable World Federal Government, they are invited to attend a meeting of the World Student Federalists to be held next Tuesday noon in the Union.... The principles of federalism; membership and elections; will be discussed and carried out.

GABRIEL GLAZER, Chairman,
McGill World Student Federalists.

Allen, "The Gad-fly"

Dear Sir:

Mr. Allen is to be congratulated for producing a thought-provoking summary of the college graduates' responsibility to society. Just as Socrates, the "Gad-fly", occasionally stirred the dreary Athenians to action, thus has Mr. Allen stirred me.

It is Mr. Allen's perversion of comparatively innocent recreational diversion, such as nonsensical television shows and motion pictures, into material for his theory of the intellectual nakedness of North America, that is itself material for Communist propaganda. If it is the responsibility of college intellectuals to reconstruct our society by the indoctrination of the masses through the application of "whole systems of ethics and belief" then we must assume that the graduate had acquired some understanding of the "values" and "higher concepts" in his University training. If Mr. Allen believes these values were in evidence at University and were forgotten only after examinations I would gather Mr. Allen is either trying to befuddle the average college student for his own above (?) average amusement, or he is confused about what he is trying to communicate. Are University students ever the "possessors of values worth respecting", or are they merely intellectually acquainted with those values without an attendant spiritual conviction necessary to stimulate the confidence of society? The role of the graduate is evident, but is he being prepared to undertake it?

If many citizens do not recognize the value of University education it is partially because they have not been as fortunate as the gifted few here at McGill. Some have been too busy populating Universities and working to keep them populated, knowing their value only in a negative way; by reading in the slander of intellectual upstarts the uselessness of their own lives and the mundane quality of their amusements. They have been too busy working for the economic and moral future of their families to have the leisure to understand what they have not had time to sample.

Mr. Allen has made several observations showing indisputably his insight, but in pushing his points too far and in generalizing his accusations he has alienated the reader toward some of his views.

Christmas Hallowed In Music

Christmas is not Christmas without music to capture the spirit (both religious and festive) of the season. To this end the McGill Choral Society is presenting "Sing At Christmas" in the Sir Arthur Currie Gym on Friday, December 15. The items on the program will be more enjoyable to the audience if they know their significance. Therefore, The Daily is presenting a selection of the items from the first portion of the program. The second portion will appear at a later date.

Prelude: Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring... Bach's superb and greatly-loved chorale-prelude, from his Church Cantata No. 147, sets the mood for the Christmas story.

The Prophecy: Good Christian men, rejoice... A paraphrase of the famous old carol, In Dulci Jubilo, which was originally a German carol of the 14th century. A contemporary writer says that the angels sang it first to Henry Suso (1366), a mystic, who was so charmed by it he danced with his celestial visitors.

Bethlehem: Jesus, Jesus, rest your head... The recent interest in original folk-songs and carols has led to the unearthing of much beautiful music in many countries. From the Southern Appalachian Mountains of the United States comes this simple, almost naive melody, arranged by John Jacob Niles, who, with Burl Ives, ranks as one of America's leading researchers.

Manger: Roun' de Glory Manger... This example of Negro folk music in its most jubilant, yet tender, moods was one of the most popular selections on last year's Sing At Christmas program. It is repeated this year by request. The arrangement is by Willis James.

The Gloria: Glory to God in the Highest... From the Christmas portion of Handel's Messiah comes this familiar Chorus of Angels, expressive, in the text, of the great glad tidings, and in the accompaniment, of the host of angels appearing to the watching shepherds.

The Wise Men: Behold that Star... Written in the style of a Negro jubilee, this rhythmic folk-song expresses in characteristic fashion the fervent faith of the Negro people, creating almost a feeling of awe as the story unfolds. The folk-song is attributed to T. W. Talley.

Herod: Lullay, thou little tiny Child... Known as the Coventry Carol because it is sung by the women of Bethlehem in the Coventry Mystery Play just before Herod's soldiers come in to slaughter their children; this ancient music, dating from as early as 1584, has been a Christmas favorite since its discovery in 1825.

Finale: There shall a Star from Jacob come forth... F. Mendelssohn, at his death, left unfinished an oratorio called the "Christus." One of the great choruses from this work is: "There Shall a Star." In the oratorio it is preceded by a trio, "Say where is He born." The latter part of the anthem in corporates the famous chorale, "How Brightly Beams the Morning Star," thus providing a fitting climax to the magnificent story of the first Christmas.

Walking Morning Reverie

by Elohim Roman

It is early morning; the snowflakes fall slowly permitting the light of the street lamps to play little tricks on them, to make them glitter as they drift down to join their brothers that have covered the earth with a white mantle.

The streets are deserted and peaceful; all the furtive noises are swallowed up in the night. Morning is not expected yet and the street breathes restfully, slumbering like a tired dog, waiting for the sun to appear that I may resume the endless routine of day work. On the morrow, trucks and cars, taxis and buses, wagons and sleighs, animals and humans will pound across the pavement, hurrying, scuttling along, making noise; but now all is silent.

Muffled footsteps sound along the sidewalk. A man; two legs, a coat and a hat, slowly walks along. The silence works on his mind like an anaesthetic; it makes him think of life and death, of comedy and tragedy, of past, present and future. It makes him think.

He walks on.

You think of things that you never noticed before.

You realize things that you never noticed before. You compare and analyze, you realize, and somehow you understand. "You cannot define, but you understand."

And you walk on.

Life and death. Only yesterday you were shaken by the presence of death. The beloved passed away. For a moment, an hour, a day you believed that you would never be able to replace the gap death left in your life.

But you walk on.

It is like driftwood in the river. The small splinters that are carried away by the torrent. They wiggle and shake, twist and turn, shoot forward and slow down. They drift together and drift apart, they might meet again, they might stay together for a long time. When one sinks for a moment it leaves a hollow, but as the flow of water proceeds this is covered up and the piece of sunken wood is forgotten. Other pieces go on, some sink, but sooner or later they all submerge. But when they sink they drift on, unseen. Thousands may sink but there always will be more pieces of bark, or root, or branch, or stems, or leaves, all different and all the same. And the river will always be there.

They all drift on.

And so it is with man. You walk on and on, pass things, overstep them, trip, walk around, run, slow down, but never stop. You walk alone, you walk in a crowd, you walk hand in hand or arm in arm. The ways of destiny are manifold, and the paths of life will never be drawn by man.

And at the end of the trail you are alone again. You cast away your clothes, all remnants of mortal reality, memories.

And you unlock the door of death.

And you walk on.

Pelletier's Progeny

Music... Children

The features of the December 2nd Young People's Concerts, conducted by Dr. Pelletier, were the brightness of the pieces selected, David Naden, and the efficiency with which the program was run.

The first selection was two short and lively movements from Handel's ballet "The Faithful Shepherd". I may say here that I have never heard this orchestra play better. It also became very apparent here how great has been the effect of these concerts on the young audiences.

They expressed a deep appreciation of Handel's music that would normally bore children who had not attended these concerts before "The Clock" by Haydn (Symphony 101), although in a slower tempo and much longer, was at least as entertaining, principally due to the plianissimo passages that brought out the individual instruments which were easily recognized by most of the listeners.

Voila!

Then The Surprise. This turned out to be Mr. David Naden, a violinist, but by no means an ordinary one. His history is highlighted by winning the Leventritt Award (the judges were Toscanini, Millstern, and Stern) which gave him the privilege of playing with the New York Philharmonic. He has

French Society Presents

Poetry Recitation Contest With Courteline Sketch

The French Society had an evening of recitations and play's last night in the Ballroom of the Union. M. Fortin of Les Compagnons and formerly of Jean Louis Barreault was the chief guest.

The evening began with a poetry recital contest. The group of students who did not have French as their mother tongue started. Those who were more familiar with French followed. After a pause, the judges, Mr. J. E. L. Launay, Chairman of the French Dept., M. Fortin, and Mr. Rigault, also of the French Dept., named the three winners of each group. Participants included students from the university of Montreal.

Mlle Gauny introduced the play with a note on Courteline, which was the pen name of Georges Moineau, author of the play. He received his baccalaureate in classics with great distinction. After a period of running away from university and the army to his father, Moineau finally settled down to a job at Ministry of Justice, where he worked for fifteen years.

While getting others to do his work at the Ministry for him, he worked on his first literary attempts, which were a great success. This encouraged him to quit his job and spend his time on literary topics. He retired with a group of bad paintings he had brought to the country.

Though he has been compared with Moliere, he doesn't possess the same amount of deepness in his satire, but he has vigour in his language and an observation of society.

Helene Waksberg turned in an excellent performance as the harassed wife.

Elections Dec. 6 Will Decide Seven Council Seats for 1951

Arts & Science — Two to Be Elected

BARBARA CHAMBERS

Platform

The position of Arts and Science Representative to the Student's Executive Council is one of many responsibilities, both to the students and to the SEC. With this in mind, I wish to propose the following:

- (1) The students should be kept fully informed of SEC activities and discussions through a weekly report of them on the Daily;
- (2) The re-establishment of a second-hand textbook service;
- (3) Improved student-faculty relationships through the introduction of student officers to all members of the Senate;
- (4) Definition and delimitation of the powers of the various SEC committees including the Women's Union and the Undergraduate Societies. This includes consideration of their financial rights;
- (5) Cooperation with the A & S executive of which I would be ex-officio member.

Having become familiar with the duties of an SEC representative, if elected to this position I will give careful consideration to all issues which arise, and judge both sides of the question. I would also appreciate receiving any suggestions, opinions or ideas from the students. These I shall make it my duty to present before the Council, and in this way, to represent the wishes of the students to the best of my ability.

Barbara Chambers

Pen Sketch

It is with a great deal of enthusiasm that we recommend Barbara Chambers as Arts and Science Representative to the SEC.

This position requires resourcefulness, sound judgment, and ability to consider all aspects of any question. Executive ability and a logical mind are prime requisites involved in the responsibility of organizing campus committees.

We feel that Barbara has these qualities. Moreover, her great enthusiasm and above-average ability to get along with people make her more than suitable as A & S representative.

She is a Red Wing, and an enthusiastic worker on the Blood Donor Committee and the Choral Society. Prior to entering McGill, Barbara was President of the Westmount Student Council. She has been a member of the MOC, Cosmo Club, and Red and White Revue.

Considering these points, we heartily endorse Barbara Chambers as Arts and Science Representative to the SEC.

Platform

The Arts and Science representative to the SEC has two main duties: (a) to represent and further the interests of his faculty, and (b) to represent and further the interests of the university as a representative of the highest student body on the campus.

With these ends in mind I submit for your approval the following program.

1. Recently an unfortunate situation occurred, wherein the relationship between the university authorities and student government became rather strained. To prevent a possible recurrence I propose the following: (a) The university regulations be published in the McGill Handbook, thus making them easily available to all students; (b) In all cases students be represented on the university disciplinary committee; and (c) the powers of student government be clearly defined.
- (2) Urge the SEC to officially approve the reduced carfare plan and seek the support of the university authorities in this matter.
- (3) Investigation into the reopening of the Book Exchange, an institution that in past years has greatly eased the financial burden of students by making available to them used books at reasonable prices.
- (4) Continued support to the band and investigation into possible new sources of revenue, thus establishing it as an institution on a level with that of other universities.
- (5) Increased Fresh representation in student government.
- (6) Clarification of the status of ISS (International Student Service), NFUS (National Federation of Canadian University Students) so that the individual McGill student will feel that he has a national voice in such matters as Federal Aid, lower textbook prices, and reduced carfare.

These are the planks upon which I stand. My only promise is that if elected, I shall do my best to carry them out and to serve the student body.

Gerald Charness.

Born in Toronto "Jerry" came to Montreal at an early age and received his primary education at the Outremont Public Schools, and his secondary education at Strathcona Academy.

Since his entrance at McGill three years ago he has played an active role in the campus life of the student. Beginning with his freshman year, Jerry represented McGill at the international debating conference at Burlington, Vermont. He was the winner of the McGill Bovey shield for freshman public speaking, losing out only to the Dawson candidate in the finals. He has served on the Arts and Science publicity and cultural committees. He was the first and second year arts and science debating representative. At present he is a senior staff writer on the Daily.

We recommend for your consideration, the candidature of one who is both well acquainted with the situation on the campus today, and who we are sure will, if elected, strive to carry out the necessary changes which are set forth in the platform below

I don't think we can remain satisfied with the present text book situation. While the setting up of the student bookshop was a step forward, two problems must be tackled by the S.E.C. First how to reduce prices. Perhaps we can borrow Varsity's system which is essentially the granting of 10% discounts to students through proper allocation of profits; Second, not only should the book exchange be revived, but should be opened early enough next year so that students may buy hand books after their first lectures.

2. The S.E.C. should use its influence to solve the constant problem of the rush in and out of the Arts Building at lecture intervals. A possible solution would be the use of the centre door as an entrance and the side doors as exits.

3. The incoming S.E.C. will be in office next Fall, i.e. during the football season. Bearing in mind that intercollegiate football interests students primarily, consideration of gate receipts should not prevent the allocation of decent seats for students. The S.E.C. should use its influence in this regard as soon as possible.

4. If this year's S.E.C. takes the initiative in activating the NFUS campaign for Federal Aid to education, it can accomplish something of lasting value. This could be done if the S.E.C. took a stronger stand in support of the NFUS proposals to the Massey Commission for 10,000 annual scholarships of $500.00 each.

If elected, I shall work for the above objectives and any other proposals of practical value to students.

Arthur Shimizu

Pen Sketch

Those of us who frequent the McGill Union can easily recall an engaging chap in a cotton coat busily clearing away the dishes. He is Art Shimizu, third year science student, who is working his way through college. He is the type of student of whom we need more in Campus affairs.

Born in Vancouver, Art received his primary education from the Sisters of the Franciscan Order. In 1943 he moved to Hamilton, and after graduation from Westdale College entered Dalhousie University in 1948. When he arrived in Dawson College last year everyone came to know him as a friendly and hard working student. Art may not be the type known as "Big Man on the Campus." But when engaged in extra-curricular activity, such as attending an S.C.M. Work Camp or organizing a Nisei Club at McGill, Art has always shown sincerity, friendliness and capacity for hard work which we are sure will recommend him to all students.

Candidate Withdraws From Dentistry

Mr. Perry Black, Chief Returning Officer, Students' Executive Council Election.

Dear Perry Black: Due to pressure of students in Dentistry III and other compulsory activities, I feel that I would not be able to devote a fair amount of my time to the Students' Council if elected.

So, I hereby ask that my nomination to represent the Faculty of Dentistry in the forthcoming elections be withdrawn.

Yours very truly,

CHUCK TAYLOR

Platform

I do not believe that a platform should be the most important consideration in electing a candidate to the S.E.C. It is easy to make grandiose promises on the basis of little experience, and there are usually forgotten as soon as this issue of the Daily sinks to its final resting place on the floor of the Arts Building. So much of S.E.C. activity consists in everyday administrative and executive work, that one should first look to a candidate's ability in these fields, as shown by his past career in the University, rather than to the ambitious plans, valid or not, that he may be formulating. As for how I stand up to this criticism, it must be left for you to judge.

I have no axes to grind. There are, however, two fields in which I have a particular interest, and for which, if elected, I intend to do my utmost.

1) The field of Inter-University and Inter-National relations. The importance of this aspect of our University life is growing daily. The need is stressed more and more for greater co-ordination among Canadian Universities, and particularly for greater international understanding on the student level. These two aims are forwarded on the McGill Campus by N.F.C.U.S. and I.S.S. respectively. I have already worked for I.S.S. and it has shown what both these organizations can do and are doing. I pledge myself to support them to the full.

2) The problem of student carfare. The question has been aired of late a great deal on the campus. Much has been said against the work of the student carfare commission, of which I am a member, but I still hold the view that University Students, constituting the embryo of our nation's future creative; power, deserve every break possible to enable them to complete their studies. I am ready to do all I can to further this end.

On these two questions, and on any other points that may arise, I shall, if elected, give the best service I can to the Faculty of Arts and Science and to the University.

Chuck Taylor

Pen Sketch

Coming to McGill in 1948-50 from Trinity College School, Chuck entered second year arts in honours history. During the two years since his arrival, he has held many responsible executive positions and carried out their related duties willingly and efficiently.

Here is the evidence that Chuck is capable of representing Arts and Science students to the S.E.C.: Last session he was active in debating and represented McGill in the Inter University Debating League. He also worked on the Education Committee of Arts and Science.

His varied interests extend to politics and he was elected to the post of Vice-President of the Liberal Club for the present year.

Chuck's realization of the necessity of facing world issues induced him to work on the Executive Committee of the International Students service.

In addition he has been active in the Literature Society and the Writer's Club and is presently working with the Carfare Committee for reduced rates for students.

Because of these wide interests we feel Chuck Taylor is qualified to represent every Arts and Science student to the S.E.C. Coupled with the practical administrative ability that comes from his executive experiences, is a visionary idealism that assures a conscientious representative.

First, I would like to thank all those who nominated me as a candidate to the S.E.C. The position, we all realize, calls for important duties and responsibilities, but I feel that it is with great pleasure that one interested in the benefit of the others, devotes his time and efforts to such a noble cause.

More specifically, a commerce representative would suggest and improve the school standard, of which we are all proud of, by proper suggestions to authorities or by initiating extra-curricular activities.

In my opinion, the following points would be the ones I would emphasize as beneficial to commerce students:

- (1) — Establishment of a national commerce undergraduate society with the view of discussing the common interest and problems of all members. (If funds are available, have regular meetings for constructive exchange of ideas.)
- (2) — Membership granted to last year undergraduates at the graduate society. The result would be a benefit both to the University, and to the students in that the undergraduate would get to know the organization, make valuable contacts, and thus be much more inclined to join the graduate society after his studies are finished.

(III) — Informations given to all undergraduates about different fields of activity in Commerce. This would be accomplished by conferences given by leading professionals, and published in a booklet available to all.

Guy Benoit.

Pen Sketch

Guy came to McGill in 1948 from Mt. St. Louis College where he was vice-president of his class, and responsible for a few organizations.

At McGill, he is member of the Newman Club, and of the C.O.T.C. where he has been appointed member of the audit board for the year 1951. He is also an active member of the M.O.C.

He is very interested in psychology having been mainly devoted to it prior to his coming to McGill, and actually attending night courses in this field at University of Montreal. He devotes a considerable amount of his spare time to sports like skiing, swimming, and tennis, and also to social activities like folk dances, etc.

We feel that he is capable of representing every commerce student to the S.E.C., and we may assure you that he will fulfill his duties in an efficient manner.

L. K. (Bimbo) BLACK

Platform

Because the Commerce Representative to the S.E.C. automatically becomes Director of the McGill Finance Committee, and as such, has little to do with policies outside of finance, I will limit my objectives to this field. These aims have not been selected at random, but were formulated while working with the present S.E.C. treasurer on this year's budget.

I fully believe the financial system which has been introduced in the last two years, giving more freedom to individual faculties and clubs, yet centralizing the financial supervision, should be continued and strengthened. Through the continuance of this system I believe the surplus from this year's should complete the reserve fund which is required by the S.E.C. in case of financial emergencies. Therefore, next year the student government will be able to utilize its whole income to the furtherance of student activities.

I believe all capital repairs on the Union should be undertaken on a long term policy, thus spreading a major expense over a period of years. Many of these repairs will not be visible to the student's eye, such as modernizing the short-order bar kitchen, but are vitally necessary to keep up with student demand.

With these points in mind I can only add that I will do my best to bring these issues to a successful close, and will deal likewise with any problems of students interest which may arise during my proposed tenure of office.

Bimbo Black

Pen Sketch

We, the undersigned, would like to recommend Bimbo Black as the unquestioned candidate to fill the position of Commerce representative to the Student Executive Council.

Coming to McGill from the Royal Canadian Naval College where he proved himself an athlete and a leader, Bimbo Black soon applied himself to Campus Activities.

Campus Activities: (1) McGill Squash Team, 150. (2) Treasurer, 1st year Commerce. (3) Treasurer, 2nd year Commerce. (4) Scarlet Key, 1940. (5) Student's Award Banquet Committee Executive, 1940. (6) Combined Charities Executive, 1950. (7) Athletics Night Organization.

In these positions, Bimbo Black has again and again proved himself a capable leader and organizer. His ideas, enthusiasm and personality have won him countless friends. We, therefore, propose Bimbo Black as the man most qualified for the job due to experience and ability, and we wholeheartedly endorse him as Commerce Candidate for the S.E.C.

Platform

I am most indebted to those who have nominated me for the office of SEC representative for Commerce, and I should like to extend my thanks to them; I only hope I am, even to a small degree worthy of their expectations of me.

If elected I will do everything in my power to raise the prestige of our school in general, to increase your employment of extra-curricular activities and athletics, and to make our undergraduate years at McGill interesting and beneficial.

It may be possible to lower Student Society fees, institute broader post graduate training in Commerce and things of a like nature, but I do not believe that I, or any other candidate, is yet in a position to make any truthful promises on any such subject. I however will wholeheartedly endorse any such plans if they prove warranted, introduce them if necessary, but above all follow the wishes of you the electorate for whom I am merely a spokesman.

I assure you that I will try to do a little more than is expected of me, a little better than it needs to be done.

Bob Graham

Pen Sketch

Our choice for the Commerce Representative to the Students' Executive Council is Bob Graham. We are confident that he is the ideal man for the position.

Bob has served McGill in general and Commerce in particular as a Senior News Editor and Assistant Sports Editor of the Daily; as an executive member of the Red and White Revue of which he is director of Publicity and Program; as President of his class in his sophomore year; as a member of the publications board; as Chairman of the Commerce Undergraduate Society's Funds Allocation Committee and the CUS Dance; by publicly work for the winter Carnival and the Students Athletic Council; as Assistant Editor of the McGill Handbook 1950 and has recently been appointed by the SEC Editor-in-Chief of the McGill Handbook for 1951.

Last year Bob was presented with the Gold Award by the School of Commerce for his outstanding service to the students throughout the year.

Furthermore, we feel that Bob's wide experience in financial matters, gained through his service with the RCAF in the past two summers thoroughly qualifies him to handle the financial matters of the SEC, a task which invariably falls to the Commerce Representative. This experience was gained when Bob served as "Responsible Accountant Officer" and Paymaster, in which capacity he controlled and was personally responsible for a $80,000.00 continuous imprest fund used to maintain and pay Canada's heavy bomber squadron, Search and Rescue Flight, and Maritime Operational Training Unit. At the same time Bob was in complete charge of the financial and accounting operations of seven station institutions doing an annual business of over $80,000.00.

We know Bob Graham as a conscientious and willing worker who will always do his best — a man truly suited to represent McGill Commerce students on the Students Executive Council.

Council Vetoes Endorsing of Candidates

By LOUIS EDDY

Following a motion passed at last Wednesday's Council meeting of November 20, student councillors ruled that no member sitting in the Council may endorse pen sketches of the faculty candidates for the S.E.C.

Discussion on the motion brought out various points that resulted in a close vote. Some members felt that Councillors were especially qualified to recommend to the student body, candidates who could best fill the council seats. Another opinion was that there was a definite danger of the continuance of small "cliques" in student government.

Several councillors felt that the relatively unknown but well-qualified "little man" was not being given an equal chance when he opposed others who had the backing of Council members. An objection to this point was that well-qualified candidates if they have participated in extra curricular activities, to any extent at all, soon show their ability and are recognized.

However, as one member pointed out, since the different councillors are automatically deputy returning officers for their respective faculties, they are thus prevented from endorsing any one candidate. But, as was pointed out again, this would probably only hold true to candidates in the faculties concerned, and members would be able to endorse candidates from outside faculties.

Students from three faculty groups have been elected by acclamation to sit on the Students' Executive Council for 1951. They are Arthur J. Markus, for medicine; Henri Labelle for Architecture, and George Truscott for Dentistry. The withdrawal of candidate F. W. Bliss, formerly contesting the seat for Dentistry, results in the automatic acclamation of Truscott.

Also to sit on the Council will be the vice-president of the Women's Union, Leticia Ariola, who had previously been chosen by acclamation. Under the Constitution of the S.E.C. the Chairman Boris Gardsky, the President of the McGill Union, Jim Cartier, the President of the Women's Union, Peggy Pierce, and the Editor in Chief of the McGill Daily, John Scott continue to sit on the council until July, end of the fiscal year.

Elections are being held today, December 6, for the various faculty representatives, members at large for the Women's Union and members of the Scarlet Key and Red Wing Society, whilst fifty-eight men students are contesting 25 memberships to the Scarlet Key.

Platform

I would like, first of all, to take this opportunity of thanking all those students who nominated me for this position.

If I am elected as engineering Representative to the S.E.C., I will attempt to be truly representative of the undergraduates at McGill in general, and of the Faculty of Engineering in particular.

My only election promises are to fulfill my responsibilities conscientiously, and with enthusiasm, and to act with impartiality at all times.

However, there are three ideas which I should like to put forward at this time, with every intention of following them up if I am elected to office:

1. To keep the student body, engineers in particular, fully informed of S.E.C. proceedings, and their significance.
2. To assign to the incoming freshman, especially to foreign students, an upper-classman who is willing to assist him as a "counselor" during his freshman year at McGill.
3. To have a University "Humour" Magazine published by the student body of McGill. (The present publication is not supported by the student government).

Finally, I wish to add that, if elected, I shall welcome any suggestions, advice or opinions, from any individual member of our Faculty, and will give them my earnest attention.

CLIFFE MIDWINTER

Platform

The students of the McGill Faculty of Engineering have always wielded considerable influence on the affairs of the general student body. This has been due in a large part to the comparative size of the faculty and the unity of purpose with which the undergraduates have acted. This does not necessarily mean that all engineers hold the same opinion on every problem that arises. What it does indicate however is that their representatives on the Student Executive Council have presented the opinions of the majority. To do this requires a very considerable part of the representative's time and energy. He must work in close contact with the members and executive of the E.S.U. and present their own views accurately to the S.E.C. It was only after careful consideration of the qualifications required for this position and the demands which will be placed upon me, that I accepted the nomination.

Therefore, if elected, I can assure the undergraduates of the Faculty of Engineering of: (1) regular attendance at S.E.C. meetings, (2) forceful representation on all issues within the jurisdiction of the S.E.C., particularly those which affect the engineering undergraduates directly, (3) my willingness to chair any committee within the S.E.C. which would advance the position of the E.U.S. on the campus.

He was subsequently chosen Secretary of the latter group, and was appointed this fall to serve on the Curriculum Committee of the E. U. S.

I wish to thank those who nominated me to represent the Schools of Physical Education, Graduate Nurses and Physiotherapy on the S.E.C. If elected, I will do my utmost to carry out the duties and responsibilities required of me, keeping in mind the interests of the University as a whole, and of these three Schools in particular.

Due to their limited enrollment and the nature of their studies, these schools are unable to take as active a part in campus activities as would be desired. My aim would be to bind the three schools closer to the S.E.C., that they might have a fuller knowledge of and a greater interest in student activities.

As a member of the undergraduate Society of the McGill School of Physical Education, it has been my pleasure to accept the honour of running in the forthcoming election to the Students Executive Council as the representative for the schools of Graduate Nurses, Physiotherapy and Physical Education. The experience required has been acquired through executive work in high school.

The platform adopted, if elected to this position, is one that applies not only to the school of which I am a member but to the school of Graduate Nurses and Physiotherapy as well. In the past, S.E.C. representatives have not been able to give proper satisfaction with regard to the business of all three schools. It is my desire to meet the presidents of the three schools, involved every week or every other week, and have these problems presented so that I, in turn, could bring them to the attention of the S.E.C. If elected I will attempt to accomplish this purpose.

The position is one of importance and responsibility. It requires time and energy. I am aware of this and at the same time am ready and willing to carry out the duties involved. It is with this thought that I respectfully ask your vote in the forthcoming election.

Music and Divinity

LEONARD HARBOUR

Platform

A representative to the Students' Executive Council has two main tasks. First, he must represent the body which elects him. In order to do that he must get to know the students in that body. If elected to represent Music & Divinity, I will make sure that I am fully aware of the problems confronting the activities of those students. I will attend every meeting of the Undergraduate Societies Executives, thereby becoming a participant in planning programme.

In the second place, the representative must be an executive. At meetings of the S.E.C. I will use every available method to make the council aware of the important role the Music & Divinity students can play in campus life. Since these faculties are small in membership, there has been a tendency to offer only passive interest in their activity. This must be corrected. Both faculties represent elements in the life of students which are basic. On behalf of Divinity I will endeavour to put into effect any programme which will represent a strong Christian witness to the McGill students. On behalf of Music, I will aid the executive in their efforts to implement the talent of music students in improving the cultural aspect of campus life.

Our two faculties have a major problem in financing their programmes. Due to the comparatively small income, it is necessary to manipulate the budget in order that funds become more numerous. This will probably mean cooperation with the larger undergraduate societies and the Students' Society. In both social and cultural programmes, campus-wide participation will increase the source of revenue.

Since our two faculties are united in the representation to the S.E.C., we should not leave it there. Through social activity, such as parties and dances, we can get to know one another and cement relations.

Religion and music have long been associated. A programme of meetings, at which our students can discuss and produce effective improvements in religious and secular music, will be of great benefit to ministers and musicians.

I do not intend to make any rash promises about programme and activity. One promise I do make, and that is, that I will devote the major part of my time to getting to know the students in both faculties and, by working with them, use my experience and ability to solve their student problems and improve the lot of Music & Divinity students at McGill.

Len Harbour is an experienced and able executive. Since his entry into McGill in 1946, with two scholarships, he has played an important part in student affairs. In 1947-48 he was 2nd Vice-President of the Arts & Science undergraduate Society and in the following year was elected that Society's President. While in office, he led A. & S. through one of its most profitable and active years.

Len, also, was, for two years, in the Red & White Revue as a vocalist; for four years, including this one, a member of the Choral Society; spent a year in the Scarlet Key Society; and is now Quebec Vice-President for the National Federation of Canadian University Students.

Len is no stranger to either church or musical work, having served as musical director at a number of church youth conventions, and for two summers was music and programme director at the Y.M.C.A. Young peoples' camp.

The University is a community of people who have come together not only to acquire technical training but also to make a worthy contribution to the University Life, to integrate their knowledge in a philosophy of life, to develop leadership, and to become more mature adults. While at McGill we have certainly made contributions toward the fulfillment of these objectives I feel that a good deal more can still be accomplished. With this in mind I have outlined the following program.

1. I propose that the S.E.C. help sponsor orientation study groups led by senior students and professors. The purpose of these groups will be to help students in general and particularly freshmen to understand what the role of a university student entails, to discuss various problems and questions concerning courses, athletics and student government, and to make considered recommendations to the university authorities with a view to improving the life of the university as a whole.

2. Since at one time or another a fair number of students has personal and emotional problems, I propose that the S.E.C. initiate an investigation of the need for a better organized system of counselling to help students overcome their difficulties.

3. If leadership and responsibility are to be developed I think that more direct participation in student government is required. If I am elected I shall try to meet with my constituents at various times to discuss relevant campus issues, to help solve the specific problems of Music and Divinity students and in doing so to interpret the wishes of these students more competently to the rest of the campus.

4. I shall try to organize two social activities at which students of Music and Divinity may become better acquainted in a more informal atmosphere.

5. I propose that the faculties of Music and Divinity collaborate in sponsoring at least one cultural activity. This might take the form of a concert or church music. In such an undertaking both groups will I am sure have something worth while to contribute.

It is not until one attempts to analyse his character and career for a portrait such as this, that one realizes the variety of talent and actively possessed by Jack Adam. He is now in his sixth year at McGill, for after taking an honours degree in arts and a qualifying year in history, he entered the Faculty of Divinity where he led his class and became the first winner of the Birks Scholarship.

In this time at McGill his ability and energy in executive positions have been widely recognised, and, in that recognition, have been further developed and moulded by experience: he has for several years been a member of the S.C.M. executive, becoming President in 1949-1950. It is of particular interest in this connection that he was responsible for the organisation of a study group on general university problems, and of a more specific survey on the personal and emotional problems of university students — to both of which he contributed an unusual insight born of attending the National Council where he had met students from all the major universities. In addition he was an active member of the I.S.S. campus committee, publicity director of the S.E.C. and, in 1948-1949, president of the Inter-faith council, in which capacity he organised one of its most successful ventures, in a programme of religious music to which various clubs contributed.

With all this, he has also found time to play inter-faith hockey, basketball and tennis with no mean success. Yet such a catalogue of distinctions, while it illustrates his capacities, does less than justice to his personality. He is convinced, and supremely, acts upon the conviction that all these activities, when informed by perceptive thought, are essential to a true perspective of student life, and he carries this personal philosophy into

Platform

The following is a brief, but sincere, outline of my platform as a nominee for the post of representative to the S.E.C. for the faculty of law and a statement of what I hope to accomplish if elected.

I have had a full year at McGill in which to familiarize myself with campus activities and to develop a mature approach to student problems and participation in campus life generally.

As a student of law specifically I have made a conscientious effort to make personal contact with every student in the faculty of law. In so doing I have come to know the majority of the law students at McGill and to gain some understanding as to their attitudes and desires as regards the rest of the campus. I have participated to the best of my ability in all matters and disputes arising within the faculty of law and therefore feel fully capable of representing that same faculty on the executive council.

Throughout my stay at McGill I have made an honest attempt to examine and discuss student activities on the campus at large. I have participated in a certain number of debates and attended a sufficient amount of student activities to deem myself worthy of the position for which I have been nominated.

I promise if elected to devote myself fully to the cause of the students in law and to carry on in the tradition of sincerity and good faith which former representatives of this faculty have done. I shall devote every effort for the close cooperation of the law faculty with the other faculties represented on the S.E.C. I intend to make the law faculty an active vital force in campus affairs and in the furtherance of this end I will be constantly aware of the attitude you, the members of the law faculty, express

Jacques has had a lot of experience with colleges and universities: After taking his Arts at Laval and Ottawa Universities, he came to McGill where he is presently studying Law.

We do not know of anyone who is not a friend of Jacques. He is known in the Faculty as a good scholar and a fine fellow and many have benefited by his help in the study of some difficult articles of the Code.

He is a member of the International Relations Club. As such he has participated in Seminars on Western Europe and Germany.

The role of a member of the S.E.C. is (1) to represent his faculty and his fellow-students; (2) to give his opinion on the various issues that the Council is called to study; (3) to work for the best interests of all McGill students as well as those students of his own faculty.

In accepting the nomination to run for the S.E.C., representing the Faculty of Law, I should primarily like to thank all those who saw fit to place my name on the ballot, and if elected I shall do my utmost to justify the trust they have placed in me.

If elected my chief effort will be to represent the better interests of the Faculty of Law on the Council, and at the same time, by sincere cooperation, I shall try to see that these interests coincide with a sound policy for the University at large.

Specifically, I shall do everything in my power to see that the program of Art Exhibitions, which has been inaugurated this year, will play a permanent part in our Undergraduate affairs.

Lastly, I shall endeavor to keep in close contact with student opinion in my Faculty, in order that the opinions of law students may receive a fair hearing on the Council.

Pen Sketch

Heward came to McGill two years ago from Mount Allison University and was quick to show his interest in student affairs. At Mount Allison he was chairman of the Debating Committee, Founder and Chairman of the International Students' Correspondence Club and an Intercollegiate Debater.

At McGill, as vice-president of the Liberal Club, Publicity Chairman of the Debating Society and active Intercollegiate Debater, he has shown his convictions his power to carry them through.

These qualities, we feel, will enable Heward to best represent Law students on the Students Executive Council. His jovial manner and good nature are well backed by his seriousness of purpose and we strongly support Heward as S.E.C. representative.

Jackie came to McGill three years ago. Since then she has proven herself capable and responsible in numerous student activities. Her enthusiasm and co-operation have been evident to all those with whom she has worked.

Among the executive positions which Jackie has held are those of Publicity Director of Combined Charities Campaign (1949-1950) him, the university is above all a community to which all can contribute, and in the life and government of which, students have the ability and maturity to participate more fully. He thus conceives of the faculties and their representatives, not as centrifugal units seeking to gain advantages for themselves, but as individuals each with a special element to contribute to the welfare of the whole.

Our candidate has shown herself to be a hard worker in decorating the four Freshmen Reception Dances and in helping organize the successful Activities Night. The Red and White Revue as well as the Gliding Club have also interested her in the last year.

Red Cagers Face Doyles Caldwell, Wilson Missing

By JACK RABINOVITCH
Coach Abramowitz' senior McGill cagers will be without the services of both Dave Caldwell and "Smiley" Wilson, tonight when they take on a scrappy Doyle Motor quintet in the first game of a regularly scheduled M.B.L. (twin bill at the Currie Gym. The "Y" Blues take on the Windsor team in the second game.

The Doyle team is comprised mostly of players from the now defunct Colonial and Grenadier Guard teams. Dudley, Fields, Henderson and former McGill cage star Bobby Dufour, are from the Colonials. Bridel and Pickrell are from the Guards while Dennis Skinner, last year with the McGill team, is out with the Doyles too, along with newcomer Jerry Rowntree.

According to latest reports from the Doyle camp Freddie Bridel, the top scorer in the loop for the past two seasons, and steady Jack Dudley who aggravated an ankle injury last week, will both be watching from the sidelines. This compensates the McGill team for the loss of Wilson and Caldwell.

Veterans Form Nucleus Of Toronto Puck Squad

By BOB BORNSTEIN
Toronto Varsity Blues (hockey edition) are virtually an unknown quantity around these parts, but chances are that Coach Wally Halder has assembled another contender in the Queen City. The Blues are always a force to be reckoned with in the hockey wars.

Varsity has turned out some fine puck-chasers in the past few years. The best Blue product of them all is Ed (Sonny) Kryzanowski, the rugged, rushing rearguard, who made life so miserable for Red teams in the past. He is now a member of the Boston Bruins of the NHL and is a teammate of Johnny (Gino) Peirson and Jack Gelineau, two former McGill stars who also rose to the top in hockey's big league.

McGill Pugilists Impressive In Workouts

Under the watchful eye of their new coach Burt Light, thirteen boxing enthusiasts turned out for conditioning class yesterday afternoon. The new mentor, former coach of the Westmount Y.M.C.A., is endeavouring to prepare some pugilists for the boxing entry on Athletics Night. It has been learned that Queen's University will be sending participants in the 135, 145, 155 and 165 pound classes.

Amherst to Compete In Swimming Opener

McGill's mermen meet the first pool invasion of the new pool on Saturday night when they face Amherst. The contest marks the first dual meet ever held in the memorial Amherst brings a squad north which rates as an overwhelming favorite over the Red Mermen. At the outset of the season Springfield was rated top choice to cop New England swimming laurels.

Co-ed Lambs Gain Second Triumph

Yesterday afternoon's action in Women's Intramural Basketball League saw the Lambs beat the Strathconas and the Barnjums beat the Leacocks.

In the first quarter of the Strathconas-Lambs game the ball remained for the most part on the Lambs side of the floor. The first basket was made by Jane McCarthy for the Lambs. The other points for the Lambs were made on a goal and one free shot.

Moyse Boys In Second Win But Oppose Blitzers

Two floorhockey games were played this week as the schedule shifts to the latter half of the first semester.

On Monday night, the Moyse Boys romped to a 5-0 victory whitewashing the Wallopers and gaining their second win of the season after dropping their first game. The Moyse Boys, who hold the Floorhockey Championship after an undefeated run last year are the team to beat again this year, but may run into trouble when they tangle with the Blitzers next week.

CO-ED CLIPPINGS

Vote as you like, but vote. That is the slogan on the campus today. The reason for this is that both the SEC and Women's Union elections are taking place today. Two posts are being contested in the Women's Union by five girls. Ann Skalkh, Mary Jane Ferrier, and "Jackie" Beaudoin are running for second or third year Member-at-Large, while Harriet (Sis) Bunting and Chloe Lafond are contesting the post of first year Member-at-Large. These girls were introduced at the election rally yesterday, but Chloe Lafond was unable to be there. . . she was out in N.D.G. waiting on Montreal's public transportation system. Remember, vote as you like, but vote . . .

While speaking to Miss R. Pelletier at the Placement Service the other day, she told me about some positions the YWCA are offering for girls in final year Phys. Ed. or Social Work.

"Miss Phyllis Haslam of the Personnel Department of the National Council of the YWCA of Canada will be available for interviews at the Placement Service Office on Thursday (tomorrow) between 9 and 12 noon," she said. All interested girls in final years of Phys. Ed. Social Work, or other faculties should sign up on the list in the Placement Service's office on University street.

An M.Sc. student, Dorothy Turnbull, has been chosen to represent McGill on the Mademoiselle College Board. Every year girls from all over Canada and the United States compete, and seven hundred are chosen from all over the continent. Last year Charmian Finch and Joan Beecher represented McGill. Dorothy Turnbull now enters the competition to choose twenty guest-editors who will produce the magazine next June.

"I only entered this as a lark," said brunette Dorothy when we met her today. "I had no idea I would win." In her entry Dorothy dealt with the scientific side of fashion. ("People often forget that scientists can also be women.")

Dorothy graduated from McGill in 1946, and returned this year to take her Master's degree in Biochemistry.

A Professor's Dinner will be held tomorrow night at R.V.C. This is not to be confused with the regular buffet suppers that are held, as it is just that special guests have been invited to have dinner at R.V.C. and meet the girls later at coffee. Principal and Mrs. James, and the heads of some of the departments have been invited to attend.

Campus Sights: Allen Cureton duckstering for the Choral Society Concert on December 15th . . . we hear that certain men on the campus are mad at R.V.C. . . seems the frosted glass has been taken out of the lights on the R.V.C. steps. And it looks as if the light bulbs have been increased from 40 to 80 watts . . . many wild and wonderful costumes were seen at the Hayseed Hop last Friday night . . . Last year she was elected a Red Wing and in this capacity she has shown herself to be a hard and conscientious worker.

Mary Forster came to McGill in 1948 and during her two years here she has taken an active interest in campus activities of all kinds.

Mary was on the Freshman Reception Committee this year and also did an excellent job as Combined Charities Representative for the School of Physiotherapy.

Mary is a keen member of the Physiotherapy Society and has taken over the position of Publicity Manager for the Society.

In nominating Mary Forster to the S.E.C. as combined representative for the Schools of Physiotherapy Graduate Nurses and Physical Education, we are confident that she is well qualified to represent the three schools of the Council.

since played with the St. Louis and Mozart Symphony Orchestra and at the Town Hall on three occasions. On Saturday, he was by far the most relaxed person on the stage, playing as though it didn't matter (although it apparently did since his performance was superb). As enjoyable as Naden's playing was for me, it was at least as much enjoyed by the audience of over 1,000 for they applauded longer and louder than at any other time during this season's concerts.

The final selection played was "The Merry Makers" overture by Eric Coates. This was brief, well-played, and was probably the liveliest piece on the entire program. On the whole, this concert was many times superior to the previous ones this season.

If the standard of this concert can be maintained, the December 16th program will also be enjoyable.

Moyse Boys—p. 5

was the top goalgetter of the evening netting a total of four goals, three of which came within two minutes time in the second period. Every man on the team scored as Coke drove home two, while Leslie, Sharratt, Dussablon, Murray and Collier each tallied singles. The Schmo-Medicine tilt which was scheduled to go last night was defaulted by the Med squad who showed up with only 4 men.

The Athletic office urges those managers of the teams who can't make a game to notify them before hand so that the game may be set to a further date, otherwise, stated Howie Ryan, the game will have to be defaulted and the club defaulting loose all their points for that game.

L.P.P. Book Fair Features Recordings, Marxist Literature

Marxist classical literature, other books on Canadian and world economics, painting by many contemporary Montreal artists, and folk and labour song records were featured at the Book Fair sponsored by the L.P.P. Club, which was held in the Union Clubroom yesterday afternoon between 12:30 and 4 p.m. Florence Boyaner, the folk singer who was invited to sing and to lead discussions on folk music, was absent because of illness, but folk-song records and anthologies were displayed.

The book display included such authors as Marx, Lenin, Maxim Gorky, Howard Fast, and Joseph Stalin. A text by I. V. Michurin, founder of the Lysenko school of biology, was also shown.

The records included union songs and recordings of many of the songs of the International Brigade which fought in the Spanish Civil War. Recording artists were Paul Robeson, Pete Seeger, Burl Ives, and others.

The pupils of Professor Alexander Broth will present a recital at the McGill Conservatorium on Thursday, Dec. 7. The programme will include the first movement of the Concerto in D major by Mozart and the Romance in G major by Beethoven.

top-flight States' powers. Besides Amherst, Springfield and Lasalle are to be met.

Coach Ashton still has his three stars of last year and a basket full of aspiring talent. Backstrokers Adin Merrow and Peter Mingle took one-two last year against Amherst. Another winner last year against the same foe was McGill's Red Seahorses, Irwin Koplin, who will face his opponent of last year, Paul Gelthner in the 200-yard breaststroke.

Elsewhere Amherst is deep and McGill is thin. They have an abundance of excellent sprint stars in Keydey, Tale, and their soph sensation from France, Cabour. The squad boasts a superlative diver in Wells. Their backstroke Wase gave the McGill backstroke duo a close race last year in New England. The breaststroke Gelthner who was close on Koplin's trail last year may avenge himself on Saturday night.

Ashton who is angling for the CIAU meet this year at London, is prepping some new swimmers. Seeing action for the first time in dual meet competition at McGill will be diver Yvon Delisle and freestylers John Garneau and Charlie Falconer.

Good performances by Peter Small, Graham Rainbow and Pete Issenman could radically alter the somewhat pessimistic outlook for the team this year.

But Amherst seems on their way to the third capture of the Vic Curran Trophy in four years.

Veterans Form—p. 6

the CIAU opener. Phil Arrowsmith and Bill Walters are a couple of good forwards on the roster, and Wally Campbell, who has been made into a defenceman after a whirl on the forward line, is being tutored by Joe (Sugar) Kane, an ex-footballer with the Blues, and should be quite a factor on the blue-line.

The veteran Doug Orr is back again for the goal-lending chores, and he should be a steady influence for the newcomers on the squad. Paul Prendergast and Jerry Fitzhenry are two rookies striving for defence berths, and Wardrop, Ball, Yeo, Dies, and Henderson are the new forwards. Halder is fortunate in having two of his lines composed completely of members of last year's team.
